3 Firemen Thought Dead Following Blaze at Syracuse

Fire Chief Savage Says Hope for Men Trapped When Roof Collapses Is Practically Gone; Walls Fall

Hysteria Grows

Families of Men Huddle Near Scene of Fire; Rescue Workers Hear Voices

Syracuse, N. Y., Feb. 3 (AP)—The plight of eight firemen buried for more than five hours in the fire-scarred ruins of a five-story office building, was described as "hopeless" when the structure's two remaining walls fell inward this morning.

"We've just about given up hope of getting any of them out alive," declared District Fire Chief Frank M. Savage.

Collapse of the two side walls of the building piled tons of additional debris upon the trapped men, who were fighting the blaze from the third floor when the roof collapsed and carried them with it into the basement.

Fireman Is Trapped
One fireman, trapped in the wreckage with the others, was rescued an hour after the collapse and taken to a hospital, critically injured. Two others were treated in hospitals for minor injuries received earlier.

The collapse of the walls was accompanied by a fresh burst of flame from the smoking wreckage. Firemen poured new streams of water on the blaze before resuming rescue operations.
Two hundred public works department employees set to work in the ruins with picks and shovels as the city mobilized all its resources in a desperate attempt to reach the trapped men.
Before the collapse of the walls, rescue workers had reported hearing voices coming from the ruins and had expressed hope that some of the men were still alive.

Families of the victims huddled in a nearby fire station, some of the women weeping and hysterical. The ruined structure known as the Collins Block, is near the heart of the business section, adjoining the State Tower, tallest office building here.

Six years ago, almost to the day, the Bastable building, adjoining the Collins Block on the other side, was destroyed by fire with loss of three lives.

The fireman rescued was William F. Moore.

Those Still Missing

Those still missing were listed as:
Lieut. David Lavine, Lieut. Albert G. Young, Lieut. Raymond E. Bauder, District Chief Thomas J. Dugan and Firemen John W. Agan, James E. Diamond, G. Michael Dixon and Frank Karlan.

The others injured were Firemen Ostrander and Clayton Crandall.

The rescued man, identified as William F. Moore, was removed from the cellar through a sidewalk grating.
The missing were listed as: Lieutenant David Lavine, Lieutenant Albert G. Young, Lieutenant Raymond E. Bauder, and Firemen John W. Agan, James E. Diamond, and G. Michael Dixon.
Police and fire department officials said the cause of the blaze was uncertain. Scores of firemen, called out by a general alarm, poured streams of water into the

Whearty Promises 'Open-Minded' Probe of Newburgh, Orange Vice

Officials in Charge of Inquiry

Raymond P. Whearty (left), special deputy state attorney of New York, has been named head of the Orange county investigation bureau which will submit evidence of alleged vice, gambling and corruption of county officials to a special Orange county grand jury meeting in Goshen. Supreme Court Justice Ely W. Personius (right), of Elmira will convene an extraordinary term of court in Goshen for a grand jury investigation under the direction of State Attorney General John J. Bennett into alleged vice, gambling and corruption of public officials.

New York to London—24 Hours

New Pan American Clipper to Carry 40 Passengers

New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—The green light given United States air transport companies by the British government to start a transatlantic service automatically places at the disposal of travelers an airliner which probably will bring London within 24 hours of New York.
The Boeing Clipper of Pan American Airways, with sleeping accommodations for 40 passengers, is the world's most commodious commercial airplane.
When schedules are inaugurated this spring over the Atlantic—the first of the unknown ocean to be explored in the twentieth century and the last to be spanned commercially by air—passengers will start their flights at the Little Long Island community of Port Washington.
Their plane will have six passenger compartments, a dining salon seating 15 persons and a private suite. The prototype of a half dozen of the Clippers, each 100 feet long with a gross weight of more than 41 tons, already has been tested extensively on the west coast.
Four motors, each of 1,500 horsepower, will give the clipper a speed of between 150 and 160 miles an hour.
Above the passengers' deck of the new series of Clippers, is the flight deck, sleeping quarters for the crew of eight, and baggage and cargo compartments. A spiral staircase connects the two decks.

Dewey Gives Out Order for Study Of Weinberg Death

Investigation Follows Demand by Lawyer That Apparent Suicide Be Given an Official Probe

New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey today ordered a formal investigation of the death of George Weinberg, a key prosecution witness in the second policy racket trial of Tammany District Leader James J. Hines.

A reading of the dead gangster's earlier testimony given on cross examination in Hines' first trial went on in general sessions court.
Weinberg died Sunday, with a bullet in the head, in a nearby Westchester county hideaway where he was in custody of Dewey's detectives.

Dewey and Westchester county officials found that Weinberg had committed suicide, but George Mulry, a Mineola, Long Island, lawyer, took up the case directly with Governor Lehman, insisting in two telegrams that there were circumstances surrounding the shooting that would bear investigation.

In the first place, said Mulry, there were no fingerprints on the pistol which Weinberg was supposed to have pressed to his head. In the second, he asserted, there was on Weinberg's hands none of the fine powder spray which often is found on the hands of a man who has recently fired a revolver.

Added to Mulry's appeal for an official inquiry was the publication this morning of reports that a blonde woman had been present at the hideaway.
Dewey, in directing a departmental investigation of the whole affair—to begin late today—said the blonde was Mrs. Evelyn Supnick, a sister of J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, another prosecution witness and that she was employed in the house as a cook merely because no "outsider" was wanted.

The theory thus far accepted by Dewey's office is that Weinberg slipped a pistol from the hanging overcoat of Joe Kaitz, a Dewey detective, and ended his own life.

Bomb Explosions Snarl London's Complex Subways

Scotland Yard Attributes Fresh Outbreak to Irish Agitators; Several Reported Injured

London, Feb. 3 (AP)—Bomb explosions in two subway stations in the center of London today signalled the renewal of a series of anti-English outrages attributed by Scotland Yard to Irish Republican agitators.

The blasts occurred almost simultaneously about 2 a. m. in the Leicestershire Square and Tottenham Court Road subway stations, about a quarter of a mile apart. Apparently the bombs were timed to go off before the rush hour began.

Squads of Scotland Yard detectives and police hastily blocked the entrances to both stations, turning away thousands of puzzled office workers. London's complex transportation system was thrown into a snarl.

A ticket collector and one other person at the Tottenham station were injured, and five persons were hurt at Leicestershire Square. So strong was the blast in the Tottenham station that telephone receivers in a long row of booths were blown from their hooks. Dynamite had been placed in the luggage room, the glazed walls of which were shattered. Woodwork was sent hurtling throughout the big station. Glass windows of ticket booths were broken and water from burst pipes flooded the station.

The explosion at "Leicestershire Square, London's 'Times Square,' also occurred in the luggage room. Glass show windows in the adjoining waiting room were shattered as were windows across the street.
For three weeks the police of England, Scotland and Wales have had a 24-hour guard on railroads, airports, electric and gas systems and other vital centers following the original outbreak of explosions.

Norris's Boycott

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)—Senator Norris (Ind.-Neb.) disclosed today that he is "boycotting" Germany, Italy and Japan. "I don't buy anything that comes from those countries if I know it," he said.

Special Prosecutor Says He Will Proceed as if Everyone Suspected Is Innocent

Special Prosecutor Raymond P. Whearty promised today an "open-minded" investigation of alleged vice and corruption in the affairs of the city of Newburgh and Orange county, the Associated Press reports.
From his pretentious headquarters in a 25-room mansion in the city's suburban residential district, the prosecutor, on leave from his post as an assistant United States attorney in southern New York, said:

"We have come into Orange county with the attitude that all citizens and officials are innocent of wrong-doing. However, our investigation will be a thorough one, and if any evidence of wrongdoing develops it will most certainly placed before the extraordinary grand jury."
(Mr. Whearty is well known in the Esopus section of the county, for as a youth he spent many vacations there with his aunts, the Misses Murphy.)

Will Organize Monday

The grand jury is scheduled to meet for organization in Goshen Monday before Supreme Court Justice Ely W. Personius of Elmira, named by Governor Lehman to preside over the inquiry into city and county affairs.

Lehman ordered the investigation after a federal grand jury indicted 45 persons on alleged illicit liquor operations and charged, in its report, widespread corruption, vice and gambling in the city and county. Whearty also conducted that investigation.

Although the federal grand jury's revelations concerned only illegal liquor traffic, the governor ordered the pending investigation to cover four points:

"Bribery, corruption or misconduct of any official in Orange county."
"Investigation of any act of gambling or vice."
"Investigation of the issuance and renewal of firearms permits, and

Misconduct or Negligence

"Investigation of all acts of misconduct or negligence in the performance of official duties on the part of any public officer * * * of the county of Orange or of any civil or other division thereof * * *"
At the same time, the governor ordered Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., to supersede Harry Hirschberg, Orange county district attorney, and Bennett named Whearty to conduct the investigation.

Hirschberg since has turned over to the special prosecutor and his assistants six indictments found by his superseded October grand jury. They charged gambling, misappropriation of public funds and perjury in gun permit applications.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)—The position of the Treasury February 1: Receipts, $15,720,104.82; expenditures, $7,597,761.55; net balance, $8,122,343.27, including $2,408,591,069.35 working balance; customs receipts for the month, $969,339.98. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1), $3,251,157,100.66; expenditures, $5,297,192,565.71, including $1,780,196,216.02 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $2,046,035,465.05; gross debt, $39,684,970,614.18, an increase of $53,694,353.65 above the previous day; gold assets, $14,693,974,657.21.

Traver Appoints Mrs. Quick To Care for Mosher's Estate

County Judge Frederick G. Traver has appointed Mrs. Ina M. Quick of Kingston a committee of the person and estate of Viron Mosher of Willow. The appointment was the result of a proceeding in County Court last week when Everett Mosher, 55-year-old father of Viron, sought to have a commission appointed.

Despite his 55 years Mr. Mosher took the stand and testified at length and in great detail as to the facts upon which the commission application was based. The case first came to the attention of the officials the middle of January when State Troopers and the Town of Woodstock Health Officer, Dr. George W. Bassow, were called into consultation. At that time it was reported that the aged father had been locked in the house by his son during the extremely cold weather which prevailed at that

Pittsburgh Dentist Confesses Slaying His Son and Wife

Tells How He Was Driven to Kill by Desperation Brought on by Debts; Murders Took Place in 1935

Pittsburgh, Feb. 3 (AP)—District Attorney Andrew T. Park related today the bizarre story of a conscience-harried young dentist who, although remarried, returned here after a long flight from the law and admitted the slaying of his son and first wife.
Unsuccessful as a dentist, 34-year-old Dr. Norman Stewart, 2nd, who later became a grocery clerk and bartender, stole $300 from a Jacksonville, Fla., hotel to finance the trip and came here yesterday, leaving the woman he married a year ago in Jacksonville, Park said.

De-spectacled and neatly dressed in a dark blue suit, Stewart walked into the office of Attorney C. Dick Cable yesterday and told his story. Cable turned him over to Park.

For four hours last night, arms folded and showing no emotion, Stewart detailed in a gruesome statement how, driven to desperation by debt, his mind "went blank" after an argument with his lovely young first wife over finances in their tiny flat above a garage in suburban Wilkinsburg.

When he came to his senses later, Park said the statement added, Stewart found his wife, Mary Louise, and his four-year-old son and namesake, Norman, 3rd, dead—beaten to death with a hammer and stabbed with a bread knife.

That was on June 15, 1935 when, after having failed to make a success of a dental practice, Stewart held a depression job as a $15-a-week grocery clerk.

With $11 in his pocket, Park said the statement related, Stewart hitch-hiked to Jacksonville where he was a bartender and odd jobs man. The district attorney did not disclose the name of the Jacksonville woman Stewart said he had married.

"I came back to Pittsburgh because I wanted to get the whole thing off my mind," Park quoted Stewart as saying.
The district attorney added that Stewart had been indicted for murder after the deaths of his first wife and son and that he probably would be brought to trial in several weeks. He was committed to jail on a bench warrant under the old indictment.

Brown's Body Is Found

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 3 (AP)—Harold Brown, 48, architect and contractor who came here less than a year ago from Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., was found dead in his car on a seldom-used road in the Squaw Peak district north of here yesterday. Sheriff's Deputies Vernon La More, Charles Slough and Ernest Roach—said the windshields of the car were closed tightly and a garden hose led from the exhaust pipe into the front door, the opening of which was plugged with rags. A note addressed to Mrs. Brown was found in the car. Brown took his nine-year-old daughter, Jean, to Phoenix school Tuesday afternoon. He failed to return that night and a search was started.

Bitterness Revives

Brussels, Feb. 3 (AP)—World War bitterness was revived in little Belgium today after Premier Paul Henry Spaak was beaten in the street by ex-servicemen who protested the appointment of a war-time German sympathizer to the Flemish Academy.

Frederick Steiwer, 55, Dies at Washington

Man Who Served Oregon in U. S. Senate Was GOP Key-note at National Convention in Cleveland in '36

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)—Frederick Steiwer, who served 11 years as a Republican senator from Oregon, died early today at the age of 55.

Near the end of his second term he resigned from the Senate January 31, 1938, to practice law here. He had not been in the best of health for the last three years.

Steiwer delivered the keynote address at the Republican national convention in Cleveland in 1936, and had been mentioned that year as a possible presidential nominee.

"No government can borrow itself rich, or spend itself prosperous," he told the delegates at Cleveland, and that expression summed up much of his political philosophy as reflected in his Senate career.

He supported some Roosevelt administration proposals, including the first farm act and the Wagner labor act, but opposed most of the President's fiscal policies.

Well over six feet tall, and broad of shoulders, Steiwer was conspicuous in the Senate chamber. He served overseas with the American army during the World War. He was born on a farm near Jefferson, Ore.

Senator for 11 Years

FREDERICK STEIWER

Steiwer was taken to a hospital yesterday. With him when he died were Mrs. Steiwer; a son, Frederick, Jr., and a son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McElvenny.

Roosevelt Shouts 'Lie' to Frontier on Rhine Statement

President Also Brands as Lie Report That He Said U. S. Frontier Was in France; Blames Agitators

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)—President Roosevelt termed a "deliberate lie" today a statement that he had said the American frontier is in the Rhine.

The President, at a press conference at which he restated America's foreign policy informally, also described as a lie the report that he had said the American frontier was in France.

The Chief Executive declared some reports of his conference with the Senate military committee last Tuesday had given an erroneous impression of this nation's policy. He added most of them had been manufactured by some legislative and newspaper agitators and they were a deliberate misrepresentation of existing facts.

Mr. Roosevelt departed from the fixed rule of his press conferences to permit direct quotation of the phrase "deliberate lie" by which he characterized one report of what he told the Senate military committee at a White House conference.

(The President summoned committee members to his office Tuesday to discuss circumstances surrounding the sale of American-made military planes to France. The committee members were pledged to secrecy and conflicting reports of what took place arose. At least one committee member brought away the impression that Mr. Roosevelt had said that in event of a European war, the frontier of American democracy would be in France. The Rhine river is the boundary between France and Germany.)

(Some other committee members, however, denied any such statement was made, while still others declined to make any comment whatever on the White House meeting.)

The Associated Press account reported these conflicting statements of what took place in the President's office but made no assertion of fact on its own authority.)

This nation's foreign policy, the President said, has not changed and would not be changed. He reiterated it to be:

Opposition to any entangling alliances.
Maintenance of world trade for all nations including ourselves.

We are in sympathy with each and every effort to reduce or limit armaments.

As a nation we are sympathetic with the peaceful maintenance of political, economic and social independence of all nations in the world, he said.

That, the President emphasized, was very simple and there was absolutely nothing new in it.
Mr. Roosevelt said the people were beginning to realize that the things they have read from agitators of the legislative and news-

Hundreds Enjoy Free Lobster, Due to Storm

Hull, Mass., Feb. 3 (AP)—Lobsters washed ashore by an incoming tide provided a meal for hundreds of residents along Massachusetts' south shore today.

Fishermen estimated thousands were carried onto the sands in five hours late yesterday. The largest was a five-pounder, but most were small.

Geodetic survey experts traced the invasion to "ground rollers" apparently set up along the ocean bed by two days' strong offshore winds.

Fishermen expressed fears the loss of so many young lobsters would cause a shortage early next summer.

Three Are Held In Poison Deaths At Philadelphia

Coroner's Jury Charges Two Women and Man With the Responsibility in Four Insurance Deaths

Philadelphia, Feb. 3 (AP)—A coroner's jury today held without bail two women and a man charged with responsibility in the deaths of four persons the commonwealth contends were victims of an insurance poison plot.

The jury said "other persons now unknown" also were involved in the deaths.

Those held were: Mrs. Corina Pravorator, who lived with two of the victims; Mrs. Stella Alfonsi, 29, widow of another, and Herman Petrillo, 40.

A story of insurance policies being piled up, month by month, on the life of a 17-year-old boy who, physicians said, died later of poison, was unfolded today for the jury.

The commonwealth charges that the boy, Philip Ingrao, his father, Charles; Ferdinand Alfonsi and Giuseppe Di Martino were victims of a three-state "poison ring" which killed in an attempt to collect insurance which authorities believe totals between $50,000 and $100,000.

Insurance agents told the jury yesterday that in three years 18 policies, totaling $14,031, were taken out on the Ingrao boy's life by Mrs. Corina Pravorator—one of three persons held in the investigation—while she lived with Philip and his father.

Joyce Has New Book

Paris, Feb. 3 (AP)—The Irish author, James Joyce, after laboring 16 years has finally brought forth his new book called "Finnegans Wake." This is his first book since "Ulysses" caused a literary sensation in 1922. The completed manuscript was shown to friends last night at a party in honor of the author's 57th birthday at the Paris home of his son, George Joyce.

7 o'Clock Blaze Levels West Park Resort; All Escape

Occupants of Building Have Only Time Enough to Don Wraps; Highland Firemen Respond

Popular Hotel

Broglie's Was One of Better Known Ulster County Resort Spots

Broglie's, popular hotel and restaurant at West Park, burned to the ground about 7 o'clock this morning. Buildings and contents are a total loss.

The hotel was owned by F. A. Broglie, who told Sergeant Hulise of the Highland State Police sub-station that he estimated his loss on the buildings alone at around $40,000 and with contents in the neighborhood of $100,000.

Occupants Escape

Occupants of the building, who were sleeping in the upstairs portion of the main building, on the east, had time only to throw wraps around their nightclothes before escaping from the building. They included Mr. and Mrs. Broglie, Mr. Broglie's father, a lady who was sleeping there and a couple of men who were engaged about the place.

The fire was discovered about 6:45 o'clock this morning by one of the men, who smelled smoke and notified Mr. Broglie. The latter investigated and on opening the door to the room in which the oil burner was located, on the southwest corner near the dance hall, was greeted with a dense cloud of smoke that almost at once filled the entire building. The smoke was so dense that it was with difficulty that Mr. Broglie reached the telephone. As it was he was unable to see to dial a number, but he finally got in touch with Esopus and Sergeant Hulise was notified. The latter called Chief William Maynard of the Highland Fire Department. Response was immediate.

Record Time

The Highland firemen made record time, reaching the scene of the fire in 11 minutes after the call was received. A line of hose was laid to the lake nearby, but the fire had attained such headway that the efforts of the firemen were of no avail.

Nothing was saved from the buildings, which are now nothing but a mass of burnt and charred timber.
With continued improvements and betterments through a course of years, Mr. Broglie had established one of the most attractive resorts of this section and its reputation as an eating place had made it widely popular, especially with Kingston people.
Mr. Broglie has conducted his business here for many years.

Mrs. Gandhi Arrested

Rajkot, India, Feb. 3 (AP)—Police arrested Mrs. Kasturibhai Gandhi, wife of Mohandas K. Gandhi, when she arrived in Rajkot State today to participate in a civil disobedience campaign. Mrs. Gandhi came here despite a previous police warning she would be arrested. Known as a "faithful, silent, watchful over her famed husband, she already has served six periods of imprisonment for political activities on his behalf.

Parent Unworried

Elmer F. Andrews Says He's Not Disturbed Because Son Goes on Little Junket

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)—Elmer F. Andrews, the wage-hour administrator whose 18-year-old son has been missing from the University of Pennsylvania since Monday, said today "I expect him to be back in school when the next semester begins."

The son, William, left Wharton school at the University after examinations. Friends said he intended to visit friends at Albany, N. Y.

Andrews said a friend of the family received a postcard from the youth yesterday, mailed at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.
"There's no reason why he can't get from Philadelphia to Albany and back by himself," the father added. "He's been to Europe and back by himself."

Earlier in the week Andrews had said he had been in touch with the boy himself.

Aromatic Tidbit

Duke and Duchess of Windsor Guzzle Garlic, Viennese Dietitian Asserts

New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—Don't breathe it to a soul, but—garlic has entered into the romantic lives of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor.

This was the aromatic tidbit wafted today by Benjamin Gaye-lord Hauser, Viennese dietitian and food counselor to the former King Edward VIII and his American-born wife, Wallis Warfield.

Not that the dizzy heady look has arisen as a menace to the world's most famous romance, Hauser hastened to explain, following his arrival on the French liner Normandie.

"It is still going as strong as ever, perhaps a bit stronger," he said.

"You see, both have taken it up."

Hauser said he prescribed garlic, along with the juices of spinach, carrots and celery, to stimulate health and build up general ruggedness.

County TB Committee Gives Review of Activities in Report

The annual report read at Tuesday's meeting of the Ulster County Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health is as follows:

January 1, 1938 to January 1, 1939.

A backward glance over the past year shows the Ulster County Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health participating in varied activities directed toward the reduction of diseases, particularly tuberculosis and syphilis, and the promotion of public health.

The association organized in 1909—soon to celebrate its thirtieth birthday—represents the New York State Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health and the National Tuberculosis Association.

Its work is financed through the sale of Christmas Seals. Its members consist of 25 to 30 members from various parts of the county, who act as a voluntary body and conduct the business of the association. The sub-committees are, the Social Hygiene Committee, Camp Happyland, clinics, auditing, publicity, legislation and township chairmen.

The county committee supplement the work and the activities of the official state and local health authorities. Their services include the development of a wider public knowledge and concern about tuberculosis, syphilis and public health needs, assisting in the promotion of necessary legislation and the organization and maintenance of new activities in such fields, and demonstrating in actual practice the usefulness of these activities.

Notable progress has been made during 1938. The tuberculosis death rate has declined, reaching a much lower mark and comparing more favorably with the state in general. Ulster county with a few other counties in New York state has for many years suffered a higher case rate of tuberculosis, meaning that the citizens with officials, physicians and public health workers have a great problem in fighting tuberculosis in this county. Great interest in the control of syphilis was evidenced in organizations of meetings, demand for literature, the marked increase in the number of serological tests made at the Kingston City Laboratory with many more cases under treatment by physicians and clinics. During the past year a new constitution and bylaws were drawn up and adopted by the committee.

Nursing Service

The nursing service cooperating with Dr. Frederick Holcomb, superintendent of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital, assisted at 115 chest clinics held every Saturday and Monday mornings during the past year. A total of 1,627 patients was examined and X-rayed in this Out-Patient Department.

Sixty-six patients were positive tuberculosis cases and were admitted to nurse's care and 16 cases were re-admitted. Thirty-six were discharged, 11 of whom died, one moved away, one apparently cured, a change of diagnosis in one case and 21 discharged to the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital and one more to another sanatorium. There were 339 patients on nurse's register December 31, 1938.

Tuberculosis is most likely to be found among individuals who are exposed frequently to the infection, especially massive doses of it. Such is especially the case with members of households in which there is or has been an open case of the disease. This means the examination and X-ray of these family contacts, adults as well as young people to be checked and rechecked at prescribed intervals.

One hundred sixty new contacts were admitted to nurse's care during 1938 and 471 contacts examinations were made at the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital.

When a patient is discovered with positive tuberculosis, the nurse visits the family physician and offers her services for a home visit to the patient and family, cooperates in the hospitalization, instruction of the care of the patient, the nature of the disease, how to avoid its spread and of the value of examination and X-ray of contacts. The social situation is also investigated and references made to proper authorities. Six hundred twenty-two such visits were made by nurse. In the county the family is then taken over for supervision of the public health nurses working in each district. The physicians of the city and county show a great appreciation for the consultation service given by Dr. Frederick Holcomb in the Out-Patient Department is evidenced by the great number of patients examined at the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital, and their cooperation with the nurse in carrying out the follow-up in the home to the program which must be carried on most consistently if we are to rid our county of this dreadful disease. The county nurse assisted the resident physician at the hospital in the tuberculin testing of nine hundred fourteen freshmen of the high schools in the county and also assisted Dr. George Weber, of the Tuberculosis Division of the New York State Department of Health in tuberculin testing the pupils of the New Paltz Normal School.

Two hundred thirty-six visits were made in behalf of patients and work with 50 school visits were made. Sixty health talks were given before adults and children groups by the nurse and 24 extension meetings attended.

Early Diagnosis of Tuberculosis Campaign

The theme of the 1938 Early Diagnosis of Tuberculosis campaign held annually in April was "Uncover Tuberculosis by Modern Methods." The campaign dealing mainly with the discovery and treatment by the new methods. Literature and posters were purchased by the association and distributed through the clinics, school meetings and appropriate places throughout the county. "Behind the Smoke" and "The Story of My Life" by T. B. Williams, property of the committee, were shown to various adult meetings and were used in the high schools before each tuberculin testing program. This method of instruction proves very satisfactory and was carried on by James P. Loughran, one of our committee members. On many occasions Dr. Holcomb accompanied the movies with a talk on tuberculosis.

Health Camp

Camp Happyland, operated by the committee for Ulster county children and conducted annually during the months of July and August for contact and undernourished children between the ages of 6 to 12, cared for 99 children during 1938—boys 54 and girls 45 in August. The past summer season was most successful. No illness or accidents hampered the health progress of the children. Children are admitted to camp on recommendations of physicians, public health nurses and other social workers, but may be referred by any interested citizen. A physical examination including vaccination, diphtheria inoculation and throat culture with X-ray of chest when necessary must be completed before entrance to the health camp. Each community in the county is given a quota for the number of children to be entered into camp. Children are given four weeks of routine care, training in health habits and character building and are instructed daily in the work carried on for them. All phases of healthful living are taught. During 1938, as in previous years, the staff consisted of a registered resident nurse, two counselors, a cook, a helper and part-time handy men.

The members of the committee and interested citizens, who came to visit the children for closing exercises must have realized the value of the training and help given these kiddies by a most loyal staff, whose services rendered could not be measured by the compensation received. Their earnest and hard work is deeply appreciated by the committee and the children who also help with the children's work during the camp season. Mr. Loughran, our camp chairman, whose interest in the children and the camp never wanes, helped us through many difficult situations which are bound to occur in an institution such as ours. Dr. Frederick Holcomb, care of our medical problems while many of our county physicians gave physical entrance examinations gratis. An usual each group had a show day when their parents were invited to hear what had been learned and see how camp was carried on during the four weeks' vacation. During the month of August 40 members of the Rotary Club came to visit the children for a noon-hour inspection and entertainment by the kiddies and had a picnic luncheon at the recreation house, leaving a substantial donation in payment.

More than 500 persons visited camp during the 1938 season. Visitors are more than a welcome. The camp committee feel Happyland becomes a vital interest when one can see what is being done for these children with their contributions.

Social Hygiene

The campaign against syphilis and gonorrhea was carried on during the past year by the Social Hygiene committee of our association with Robert L. Simpson and 19 other voluntary members representing persons from the city and county.

Their role is to inform, educate, promote and organize so that the people in the mass and as individuals, including infected persons may become informed about the facts, as to symptoms, diagnosis, treatment, cure and prevention of syphilis and gonorrhea. That the voters, taxpayers may through education accept and approve laws and appropriations when presented by local and state authorities to the end that local diagnostic treatment and follow-up facilities may be increased and enlarged thus reaching a suitable standard. Cooperation with state and local departments of health, physicians, and many county organizations.

Social Hygiene Day was observed February 2, 1939, by a meeting held at the Y.M.C.A. Approximately 200 were in attendance at this meeting. A resolution of approval was passed at the meeting and forwarded to the senators and assemblymen of our own district as well as to the sponsors of the pre-marital and mothers' bills up for consideration at that time. Both bills became laws during the year.

Large quantities of printed matter was distributed and the slide film "Enemy of Youth" shown. Various organizations throughout the county responded to invitations sent from the committee office to sponsor meetings and several of the physicians presented much time and effort in presenting the subject of syphilis to the gatherings.

The committee has joined the American Social Hygiene Association—sponsors of the national subscription and will thereby benefit by leaflets, magazines and numerous other issues put out by the association during the year. Ten copies of "Shadow on the Land" by Surgeon General Thomas Parran, have been placed in school and public libraries. The book has also been loaned from public office shelf. Various communities taken advantage of this procedure, making one person in the publication responsible while the publication made its rounds. Preparations for another Social Hygiene Day February 1, 1939 are now under way.

The ten city and county papers have published 247 articles sent out from the committee office in the interest of tuberculosis, syphilis, negro health week, public health and Christmas seals. This is one of the greatest means of education in public possession and the cooperation of the various editors is invaluable to the committee and the public which it serves.

Christmas Seal Sale

The 1937 Christmas Seals sale in the county raised a total of $7,534.66. An increase of about $100 over the previous year. The net capita sale was 9.6, Ulster county being one of the 19 counties raising over the per capita set by the state. A refund received from the state committee during the year was our reward.

That our citizenry appreciate and approve our program is shown by their fine response to the annual appeal. Eighty-three per cent of the money received is used in the work of the county health activities while 12 per cent goes to the state committee for organizing, promoting and supervising the seal sale and carrying on our statewide activities during the year, while 5 per cent is forwarded to the National Tuberculosis Association, who are responsible for most of our research work, standards set up for the medical profession, who are caring for the tuberculosis and working in the tuberculosis field of science.

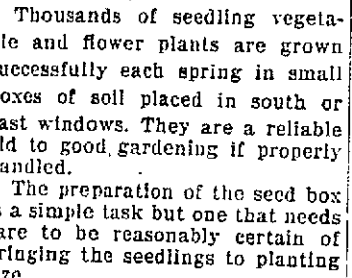

During the year Miss Frances Brophy, consultant of the National Tuberculosis Association, analyzed our local seal sale procedure and complimented the committee highly on the business-like way the sale is carried on by them, and of the fine service given to the county people in exchange for the splendid contribution they make for the Christmas Seals campaign. Much constructive help was given through this analysis as well as conference held with the state committee on tuberculosis and public health. Outstanding among these are the

Window Seed Box Gives Spring Jump

Speed Garden Work By Planning Now

Thousands of seedling vegetables and flower plants are grown successfully each spring in small boxes of soil placed in south or east windows. They are a reliable aid to good gardening if properly handled.

The preparation of the seed box is a simple task but one that needs care to be reasonably certain of bringing the seedlings to planting size.

In a lightly built box it is advisable to bore holes in the bottom to assist quick drainage. By covering the holes with pieces of broken pottery, the soil is prevented from leaking through. If a box is loosely put together, with cracks between its boards, drainage holes may be omitted.

For the finer seeds it is an excellent plan to cut burlap to fit the box and lay it over the coarse drainage, and then place the soil upon it so that the box may be watered by setting it in a pan of water and there will be no danger of washing the tiny seeds or seedlings. Turn the soil and sow the seed thinly in rows. This is better than sowing broadcast as it will be appreciated when it comes to transplanting.

Thin sowing is economy. Quantities of seed are sated by too thick planting. The tiny plants crowd each other and none of them has a fair chance when they come up thick as fur. This necessitates early transplanting before the seedlings are strong enough to be handled.

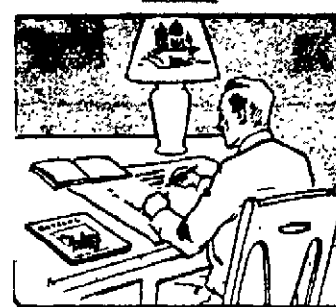

Cover the seed boxes with a damp cloth or piece of paper until germination starts, then place a pane of glass over the top. Remove the paper or cloth as soon as the first tiny sprouts break the soil. Wipe off the covering glass when water collects on it from evaporation. This will prevent moisture from dripping.

During the day prop up one edge of the covering glass for ventilation.

Keep seed box soil moist but not wet or water-logged. Good drainage will take care of this, provided water enough to soak the soil is applied when needed, which is likely to be once a day.

Give the seed box all the sunlight possible. If the seedlings do not have sufficient light they will

Wallkill School Progress Report

Wallkill, Feb. 2—Twenty-five students of the high school took regents examinations in January with 21 out of the 25 passing.

The answers are usually to be found in the seed catalog. Unlike the catalog of a similar purpose in other industries, the seed catalog is an educational volume, which contains an almost unlimited fund of information about the heights, colors, growing habits and cultural needs of flowers and vegetables. Some of them are even so complete (they list thousands of varieties) that they are used in agricultural schools as text books.

It is important for you to know, for instance, that a certain variety of zinnia grows 18 inches tall, while another might grow only 6 inches for in a border planting it would be manifestly out of place if you confused the two and placed the taller variety in the front row and thus hid the shorter one.

The amateur gardener can also find much profit and pleasure these days in reading magazines and books on his hobby, and relating them to problems at home. In this connection it is a good idea to get thoughts down on paper, drawing the garden, with flower and plantings placed on a scale as new ideas are found and by the time planting season rolls around, you will know just where everything should go, will be able to get through the rushed days of April with a minimum of effort and have a better looking garden besides.

reach for it, growing tall, spindly and weak. Humid air is also desirable for them; a kitchen window facing south is a good place for a seed box since the kitchen air usually has the most moisture. When the seedling plants have formed their second pair of leaves they may be transplanted to another box where they will have more room. Instructions for this will be given in a subsequent article.

WALLKILL

Wallkill, Feb. 2—James Smith spent last week in New York city with Dr. Victor Van Wagenen.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Billie moved from Passaic, N. J., to their home in Wallkill on Orchard street last week. Mrs. Billie, who has been ill since returning to Wallkill, was removed to Cornwall Hospital Tuesday.

Elmer Nichols has passed his regents examinations and is attending Kingston High School.

Ignorance Was Bliss

An Indian once, unacquainted with the white man's tools, found a watch and for a day listened with surprise and pleasure to its ticking. But when the ticking stopped, the Indian looking on the toy no longer with any satisfaction, sold it to the first person who offered him a trifle in exchange. As the bargain was sealed, the Indian excitedly exclaimed, "Ha! She already died!"

Some Hints for Winter Drivers

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)—Hazards of winter driving brought these do's and don'ts for drivers today from Dr. Laurence M. Thompson, Red Cross life saving official:

1. Drive slowly. Avoid sudden stops and quick turns. If a car has been standing some time after a drive in snow or slush, test the brakes before starting off in it.
2. If you have no chains and the road becomes slippery, let a little air out of the rear tires.
3. When your car skids, don't put on the brakes. Keep your foot off the brake, release the clutch, and turn the front of the car in the direction of the skid.
4. In deep snow, if your car refuses to go forward, don't churn the wheels. Try "rocking the car" forward and back. Throw into reverse, go back a few inches or feet, then forward again, each time getting a little longer running space.
5. If you can't see, don't drive. Dimming the lights may help in snow storms or fog at night.
6. Guard against the odorless, colorless carbon monoxide gas. Never sit in a closed car with the engine running. Never run a motor in a closed garage. Find out how to give artificial respiration, which offers the only chance of recovery for persons overcome by carbon monoxide.

Use 80,000 Men To Track Spies

Vast Army of Government Employees Pressed Into Nation-Wide Hunt.

WASHINGTON—Elmer Lincoln Irey, the man who put Al Capone behind bars and who set the trap that caught Bruno Richard Hauptmann, directed an army of 80,000 government workers in one of the most extensive spy hunts since the World war.

Treasury officials declined to discuss details of the newly conceived espionage drive. But it was learned that an order directing heads of treasury department investigative agencies to be on the alert for spy activities, was intended to apply to every employee of the department.

Clue May Be Found Anywhere.
Irey's theory is that any treasury employee might stumble across some spy clue in the course of routine duties. Such a clue would be relayed to him, who, as co-ordinator of treasury enforcement activities, would assign a trained investigator to the case or pass the information on to another interested government agency. Irey is a major in the military intelligence division of the officers reserve corps.

When President Roosevelt announced recently that the federal government would undertake a co-ordinated drive against foreign espionage in this country Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau selected Irey to head the treasury's phase of the work because of his effective accomplishments in criminal detection.

A native of Kansas City, Mo., he gained his knowledge of undercover work as an aid to the chief post office inspector. To the public he is best known for his work in the Capone and Lindbergh cases.

When Capone was riding the heights of lawless power Irey entered the case. He created a secret "Capone squad," which eventually pieced together an amazing record of illicit profits leading directly to Capone and sending him and some of his henchmen to federal prisons.

Worked in Lindbergh Case.
Irey entered the Lindbergh case following underworld rumors that the crime was committed by the Capone mob. It was he who induced Charles A. Lindbergh to record the serial numbers of the $50,000 ransom and to include conspicuous gold certificates among the bills. Hauptmann was arrested when he passed one of the ransom bills.

Irey was named co-ordinator of treasury enforcement agencies September 15, 1937, with general supervision over law-enforcement activities of the secret service, coast guard, customs service, narcotics bureau, alcohol tax unit and the internal revenue intelligence unit.

Twins Named.
NORMAN, OKLA.—Here is how the Bobby Davises identify themselves: "I'm Bobby Davis No. 1," and "I'm Bobby Davis No. 2." The "twin-name" students are not related.

Wild Animals Organize To Procure Food, Fight

Wild cats can do what chimpanzees, horses, and elephants cannot accomplish. They can combine to find food.

On Frigate, a lonely coral island northeast of Mauritius, live hundreds of wild cats descended from survivors of a wreck. Since there is no other food for them, they have learned to live on fish and to organize for catching them. They form a circle on the dry reef, and just before low water closes in, driving in the fish which have remained behind in the many small pools and channels. A single drive may yield a ton of fish.

The wild dog is equally clever, states a writer in London Answers magazine. The hyena dog of South Africa, an oddly colored animal, with markings of yellow, black, and white, hunts in packs. Part of the pack gets on the trail of a buck; the rest go ahead and wait until the first lot drive the quarry close to them, then they take up the chase.

The best example of combination among animals is offered by the beaver. Men who have spent years in watching these most intelligent creatures, say that every individual in the colony has its own task in building and keeping up the dam which forms the pool in which the whole colony lives.

The shaggy musk ox of the Far North lives in small herds. When attacked by wolves, the bulls form a ring, with the cows and calves in the center. The buffalo of the plains had the same method of defending their young.

Keeping a White Elephant
Most of us have unwanted and usually unsightly objects about the house which we keep because somebody gave them to us or because we spent good money on them in a weak moment. We call them "white elephants." This phrase came to us from Siam, where the white elephant is sacred, notes a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. Being white, it could only be possessed by royalty. It could not be worked, and it had to be kept in a royal state. A favorite method of ruining a courtier was for the reigning monarch to make him a present of a white elephant. The cost of maintaining the animal in its proper state was a ruinous business, for the recipient could neither give it away nor sell it. In the end the king would have his wish and regain his elephant.

Most Southerly Large Glacier
Palisade glacier, at the head of Big Pine creek, about 15 miles west of Big Pine, is California's largest and also the most southerly large glacier in the United States. Its highest elevation is 13,400 feet and is about three miles long by half as wide, with a drop from head to foot of 1,100 feet. Its background is a series of skyscraper peaks, including Mt. Palisade, elevation, 14,254 feet; Mt. Sill, 14,190; Agassiz Needle, 13,882, and Mt. Winchell, 13,749.

Egg Production Is Boosted by Music

Poultryman Finds Tastes of Hens Run High.

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO.—Hens lay eggs to music at the Maplewood poultry farm near here, and according to Henry M. Galle, proprietor, their tastes are very high.

Symphonic and organ music increase production, but the hens aren't swing enthusiasts.

"We've installed radios throughout our eggery," said Galle, who objects to the word "farm" when applied to his place. "The music soothes the hens and makes them more contented."

The "eggery" is one of the most up-to-date in Ohio.

There is no chicken yard wherein the fowl may scratch and cackle. There is no leisure in the Galle egg factory—hens work a 14-hour day every day. Lights go on promptly at 5 a. m. and off at 7 p. m.

Only the roosters are permitted to run free in the yard.

"Hens don't lay eggs while they sleep, so we keep them awake as long as we find it pays—and that's about 14 hours," Galle explained.

The chickens live in wire cages at Maplewood. A trough of fresh water flows by the front of each cage. Another trough provides feed.

When a hen produces a potential breakfast, the following happens: The egg rolls out on a special trough.

The egg strikes a lever, records the laying on a special charting apparatus.

The egg falls to a rubber belt conveyor, which carries it first to the waiting baskets.

The hens, like students, are graded. "Passing" grade is 14 eggs a month, which isn't good, however.

"If a hen lays less than her quota, she isn't paying her way, and she must go," said Galle, looking at a chart. "We can't afford to support any 'star boarders'—so we sell them."

Clouds or no clouds, the hens get their sunshine—in bottles. Cod liver oil—containing the sunshine vitamin—is fed them daily with their grain.

This is just part of their scientific feeding. To fatten them a special mixture of grain is provided. For egg laying, an egg mash is fed to the fowls.

Officials Talk of Happy Prisons in Australia
SYDNEY.—Department of justice officials believe that New South Wales penal institutions have the happiest prisoners in the world. The reasons given are as follows:

There is a sliding scale of remissions ranging up to the one-quarter of the sentence for first offenders.

Prisoners get three good meals a day and appoint their own representatives to inspect the cook-house and see that everything is as it should be.

They have ample library facilities and can read till 9 p. m.

Their weekly paper includes even race results.

Concert parties visit the jails once weekly and one jail has its own movie.

Prisoners can spend earnings on special dishes not included on the regular menu.

father would not have furthered the son took down the stove-pipe and carried it away to his room.

The aged man said his son constantly talked and argued with himself and carried on a conversation with some imaginary person, supplying the questions and answers himself.

At one stage in the proceedings the son put a lamp and lock on the door of his father's room so he could lock him in during the night to prevent keeping a fire. Although there was plenty of wood on the 300 acre farm and lots in the wood-shed the son objected to its being used.

Mr. Mosher said he fooled his son by removing the lamp and lock and retaliated by putting a lock on the inside of the room so he could lock himself in and have privacy.

One cold day the son, according to his aged father, locked the 85 year old man in his room without a fire and stated he would leave him there until "chore-time." This was the day the officers came.

Mr. Mosher told of opening the heavy screen on his bedroom window and swinging out to the ground where he sought aid of neighbors and the Traverses were summoned. Mr. Mosher said the screen was extra heavy. It had been placed there following the time when the family dog became frightened one night by a clap of thunder and came bodily through the former screen and window into the aged man's bedroom.

He told of the incident in great detail and frequently interrupted counsel to say, "Wait, I am ahead of my story," and then he would add some detail to connect up the story.

His son believed he had been "murdered" several times and brought back to life. One time he said his son said he had been "murdered by State Troopers and brought back to life by use of a naphtha." This conversation the aged man said was what convinced him that his son was not mentally right. He talked on fantastic methods of having been "murdered" and brought back to life.

A 1939 shipment of giant yellow long leaf pine from Louisiana went to Durban, British East Africa, for use in shoring gold mines in Transvaal.

REDUCTION IN VEHICLE DEATHS

The most striking decline in automobile accidents, injuries and deaths in New York state in eleven years, featured by a saving of 537 lives from the traffic death toll of 1937, in spite of no decline in vehicle-miles of travel based on gasoline consumption, is reported by Commissioner Mealey in his annual report for the calendar year of 1938. The official bureau figures show that the 1938 fatalities numbered 2,528 as compared with 3,065 in 1937. The total of injured declined about ten per cent and the total number of accidents also dropped about ten per cent.

The improvement the past year is credited to a general public awakening to the appealing human and economic waste caused by the traffic accident and a determination on the part of the public actively to support efforts of public and private agencies on a wide-spread front to force down the motor vehicle accident curves.

In the opinion of the commissioner the following are essential for a continuance of the gains: Sympathetic public—operators and pedestrians alive to the fact that traffic regulations are designed for their own safety and well-being, tightening of driver tests, weeding out operators who are lawless, heedless, inefficient or otherwise unfit to drive, vigilance in traffic enforcement, and continuation, and if possible extension, of safety education in the schools and through other channels designed to reach the adult.

Believed due largely to the safety education programs in the schools, child deaths in motor vehicle accidents dropped off nearly 30 per cent during 1938, compared with the previous year. The deaths in the children's age group declined from a total of 388 in 1937 to 272 in 1938.

The Center for Safety Education of New York University recently reported that traffic accident statistics reveal two age levels on which special stress in safety must now be laid. In the period from 1922 to 1937, the death rate for children of school age decreased by 13 per cent, the rate for adult groups increased by an average of 160 per cent and for pre-school children increased by 35 per cent. This indicates that these two age levels—adult and pre-school—are vitally important and will be considered in studies conducted by the center.

What has been accomplished in the school-room through safety education can and will be repeated on the streets and highways, while the good work goes on with increased momentum and scope in our elementary and high schools.

Ulster county played an important part in the automobile fatality reduction during the past year when 25 deaths were recorded. For the year 1937 there were 37 vehicle fatalities.

DANCING, CRAZY AND SANE

The public is edified, or perhaps we should say pepped up, by the announcement of new dances. Notable among them is "The Injun," said to be sweeping down from Canada. It is described as "built around the idea of an Indian buying a radio, tuning in on Harlem and getting swing." Obviously something can be done about that. A New York expert pronounces it "a very gay dance and much fun to do."

Another dance dawning on the horizon is the "Black Pool Walk," a British importation and said to be "peppier and cuter than the Lambeth." The latter, by the way, was danced lately in Rome at the ball given by Mussolini to Prime Minister Chamberlain, and participated in, to his own perplexity and horror, by the solemn head of the official Fascist Party. But the Lambeth is considered not peppy enough now for our young people, and the Black Pool is adapted to "a younger, more spirited generation of walkers."

Along with this spirited walking, however, more staid dancers will be reassured by the announcement that there is a remarkable revival of interest in old-time dances such as the plain quadrille, the waltz quadrille and the waltz minuet. Then for more lively groups there are the Dutch hop and the barn dance. Thus if dance patterns represent public psychology, we're probably getting back to a period of comparative sanity.

FRANCE BUCKS UP

Somebody seems to have been feeding the French government raw meat. The weakness and confusion which recently suggested political and moral collapse are gone. Premier Daladier has got the nation back to work and restored its political morale. A new spirit seems to have swept over the nation, of which Parliament is the sounding board.

The most reassuring thing happening lately was the resolution, by a parliamentary vote of 609 to 0, that "the Chamber approves the declaration of the government and has confidence in its vigilance to protect the integrity of the French Empire and the security of her imperial communications."

France was long plagued by a mob of minority parties. Now, for defensive action against threatening dictators, they seem to have become again one patriotic party, as they did in the World War. Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany have driven them into unity.

At the same time the government at Paris is working hand-in-hand with the British government. Both seem entirely aware of the present danger in the Mediterranean and elsewhere, and willing to face it.

It seems clear that if the Duce starts anything new, he will find France ready. That fact may keep him from rash action.

"It is not everybody who can insult France," said Premier Daladier in a speech to the Chamber of Deputies. The privilege, reserved for Hitler and Mussolini up to now, seems about to be withdrawn even from them.

A new Pan-American Clipper is said to be "as big as a five-room house." We'll be living in such quarters some day, and only coming down now and then to see how the world's getting along.

Now a college dubs an actress "Doctor of Humane Letters." She probably writes very nice ones, at that.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act. PHYSICAL EXERCISES FOR ASTHMA

When a number of research and practicing physicians form an organization or council to find out all possible about an ailment and pass this information along to other practicing and research physicians, much is likely to be learned about that ailment. Thus, in Great Britain, there was formed some years ago what is known as the Asthma Research Council and at each annual meeting progress for the previous year is reported.

Although there are various causes for and types of asthma, one method of treatment has shown very satisfactory results for many years, not only in the hospitals but everywhere else. This special treatment is exercise or exercises.

The asthmatic chest is barrel-shaped because the lower chest and abdominal muscles remain distended—the breathing being all done at the upper part of the chest, the lower part of the chest—the diaphragm—scarcely moving at all. The object of the exercises is to teach the patient to breathe with the diaphragm or abdomen. Three groups of exercises are described in the little book "Physical Exercises for Asthma," published by the organization. Each exercise is simply explained and adequately illustrated by reproductions of photographs. Although the exercises vary somewhat, the breathing is the same in all—a "short" breathing in of air through the nose, followed by a gentle but long breathing out through the mouth. During this breathing out through the mouth, the patient makes an F or S sound with the lips or teeth to fix his attention on blowing out as long as possible. During the breathing in, the upper part of the chest muscle must remain still, the abdomen rising during the breathing in. With the breathing out the abdomen contracts or draws downward very slowly. It is recommended that the exercises be practiced for at least ten minutes twice each day.

For asthmatics and all interested in asthma, this little book should prove of great value. It may be obtained by sending twenty-five cents to Asthma Research Council, King's College, Strand, London, W.C.2, England. The name of the booklet, as mentioned above, is "Physical Exercises for Asthma."

Allergy

One of the commonest causes of asthma is allergy or being sensitive to various foods or other substances. Send today for Dr. Barton's booklet entitled "Allergy," No. 10, which deals with how to find the offending substances and what to do about them. Send ten cents to the Bell Library, 247 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y., to cover cost of service and handling and mention the Kingston Daily Freeman.

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

Feb. 3, 1919—Fireman Louis A. Kolls of Central Fire Station fell to his death in an abandoned quarry hole while fighting a brush fire in the woods off the high road, downtown.

Mrs. James Molloy of Creek Locks died.

Miss Marie E. Newburgh of East Pierpont street died of injuries sustained in an auto accident near Stone Ridge.

Mrs. Alonzo P. Casseles of Marlborough died.

Cheyenne, Wyo., UP—A carload of paintings by the world's masters, insured for $20,000,000, was held in Cheyenne recently until a warm air circulating system could be installed in their railroad car. Experts who accompanied the shipment said the installation was necessary because they feared the sudden change from the comparative warmth of low altitudes to the frigidities of the continental divide west of Cheyenne might crack pigments on the canvas. The paintings were enroute from the east to the World's Fair in San Francisco.

Daily David Lawrence Feature Is Delayed

David Lawrence's copy which appears daily on this page did not arrive at The Freeman today. Tomorrow a double Lawrence feature will appear.

The column material was believed delayed by a wreck at Garrison when mail and passenger service on the New York Central Railroad was halted several hours early today by the derailment of three freight cars.

According to The Associated Press Chief Dispatcher W. F. Whiteman of Albany said the cause of the accident was unknown. Northbound passenger trains were routed over the Harlem division to Chatham and over the Boston and Albany tracks to Albany. Southbound trains, Whiteman added, were not seriously delayed.

The dispatcher said the cars blocked four of the railroad's main tracks through this village.

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

No. 5
 Personal Exemptions

In addition to the personal exemption of $1,000 for a single person or a married person not living with husband or wife and $2,500 for married persons living together and for heads of families, a taxpayer is entitled to a credit of $400 for each dependent, defined by income tax law, and regulations as a person under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective. The term "mentally or physically defective" means not only cripples and those mentally defective but persons in ill health and the aged.

In order to be entitled to the $400 credit, the taxpayer must furnish the dependent his or her chief support. The credit is based upon actual financial dependency and not mere legal dependency. For example, a father whose children receive half or more of their support from a trust fund or other separate source is not entitled to the credit.

Neither relationship nor residence is a factor in the allowance of the $400 credit for a dependent. The taxpayer and the dependent may be residents of different cities. If husband and wife both contribute to the support of a dependent, the $400 credit may be taken by the one contributing the chief support, and may not be divided between them.

A single person who supports in his home an aged mother is entitled not only to the $400 credit for a dependent but also to the personal exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family. A widower supporting under similar circumstances a dependent child under 18 years of age also is entitled to the personal exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family, plus the $400 credit for a dependent.

Under the Revenue Act of 1938 both the personal exemption and the credit for dependents are required to be prepared where the status of the taxpayer changed during the year.

STONE RIDGE

Stone Ridge, Feb. 1—Mrs. Ida Roosa is spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. George Weeks.

The Christian Endeavor of the Reformed Church will serve a cafeteria supper Tuesday evening, February 14, in the basement of the church.

A marriage of February 2, 1867, was that of Lavina Weeks to Nelson Boice. The bride and groom were well known residents of the northern part of the town of Olive. A marriage on February 3 was that of Mrs. Elizabeth Winchell of Olive to Daniel Rowley of Lexington.

Mrs. Oscar Gantner and Emmett Gantner, who left in their car for Florida late in January, are now located at North Miami.

News of the death Wednesday of Charles Hogan of West Hurley came as a shock to Mr. Hogan's friends in the north reservoir section. Mr. Hogan resided in the village as a boy and young man for many years. He was a clerk at Winchell's store for a time and later had the post office at Ashokan.

George VonderOsten, for several weeks a patient at a veterans' hospital in New York, sent greetings to his friends of The Freeman and thanked them for the interest they have shown in his welfare.

Lewis Shaw, a former resident of Shokan, called on friends here Sunday.

Leonard Ruckert is rebuilding his chicken house, following the recent fire.

BABSON ON BUSINESS

Business Holding Steady
 Babson Says Activity Twenty Per Cent Above Last Year

Babson Park, Florida, Feb. 2—Despite the latest war scare, business is running along at the same level as a month ago. Because the sharp gains of the Fall have not continued, however, many people are disappointed. They have asked me if I am just as optimistic as I was on New Year's Day. My answer is "Yes." The domestic picture is the same as it was a month ago. Recent foreign developments are unsettling, but the basic European situation has not changed.

Business finished up the old year at 100 on my Babson-chart. It closed January at the same figure. The current comparison with a year ago, however, is much more cheerful. The December gain was 15 per cent, while January showed a 20 per cent jump over the level of 13 months ago.

Last year at this time we were still going downhill. Hence, if business holds steady for a few weeks more, and then begins a substantial pick-up, my forecast of a 25 per cent gain for the first quarter will have been fully justified.

Steel and Autos Down

Currently, most industries are moving along in fairly good shape. Steel operators, around 50 per cent of capacity, are 13 points lower than their December high of 63 per cent. Automobile sales are also down from their peak, but are 50 per cent ahead of the 1938 level. Textile mill activity is substantially higher. So are freight carloadings, after making allowance for the usual drop at this season. Coal mining and crude oil output are approximately the same.

Electric power consumption is breaking all records this Winter. Many people cannot understand why this is so in view of the fact that business is not breaking any records. The reason is that there are more household appliances in use today than ever. Rates are steadily dropping, thus encouraging the purchase of more and more refrigerators, ranges, etc. Yet, only a small number of homes are completely "applianced." Here are the figures: refrigerators, 52 per cent, ranges, 9 per cent; and water-heaters, 2 per cent. With a firm control over all costs, except taxes and labor, the utility companies have an interesting year ahead!

Building Still Increasing

Building, however, is the real work horse in the present business situation. New contract awards are way ahead of the year-ago levels and are at the highest point in many years. As a result, the lumber "cut" is very heavy; cement and brick sales are good; and orders for structural steel are propelling operations in the whole steel industry. Moreover, I expect building to hold these big gains this year, thus stimulating activity in the twenty-six allied industries.

January retail trade was, of course, off from the Christmas peak; but it held close to the relatively high volume of January, 1938. Much of my hope for a good year is pinned on retail sales. Naturally, we cannot have higher factory activity, more jobs, and bigger payrolls if goods do not move briskly across store counters. In this connection, I want to warn merchants and other business men:

You cannot expect to get your full share of the 1939 pick-up if you do not push your advertising. The time to spend money on your promotions is now rather than when business is booming!

Railroads Out of "Dog House"

Expenses have been slashed drastically. There has been an encouraging pick-up in freight carloadings since last Summer. The combination of these two factors has allowed many roads to pay all bills including interest on their bonds and still have a little money left over. Consequently, such carriers are beginning to buy new locomotives, freight cars, rails, and the like.

The mining business looks a little uncertain to me. Last week I spoke about the failure of raw material price to rise. This should help business, but temporarily it is tough on the mining regions. I cannot foresee any sharp gains in metal prices in the near future. They await more monetary inflation. Actually, the wind seems to be blowing toward a reduction in the cost of government prices for domestically-mined silver. I am not a mining expert, but this might benefit, rather than hurt, the copper and lead business.

No Change in Outlook

Summarizing: The recent developments in the domestic business front have been satisfactory. The first month of 1939 was the best January in nine years, excepting only 1937. Not one of the favorable factors which led me to predict a good year has changed. The European situation is no worse than a month ago; it simply is coming to a head. If business men keep their perspective and do not suddenly get a new "fear" complex, I see no reason why business should not continue to improve.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Feb. 2—Harold Benson of Rhinecliff spent the week-end with his uncle, Louis Thiel, at the Thiel farmhouse on the state road.

Mrs. C. G. Fuller postponed her return home from New York because her husband broke an ankle. This was the second broken ankle sustained by Mr. Fuller who is one of the city's leading plumbing contractors for skyscrapers and other large buildings.

Frederick Herschenroeder, Jr., came up from New York to spend Sunday with his parents at their home on the mountain road.

There are some deep drifts in many spots as a result of the recent storm and blow. Alternating layers of soft and frozen snow makes walking difficult off the highways. There has been some excellent skiing this week. John and Robert Addis being the most consistent followers of the sport in this section.

The postponed January meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the Shokan Reformed Church will take place next Wednesday afternoon at "Twin Trees," home of Mrs. Homer Markle.

Miss Helen Maitland was accompanied back to Brooklyn Saturday by her mother, Mrs. Thomas Maitland, who will remain in the city for some time.

Nancy North celebrated her ninth birthday Thursday, January 26, her guests upon this occasion being Audrey and Fay Lyons of Ashokan. The little girl will soon be going back to school, after an absence of two months, during which time she had been under the care of Dr. Hans J. Cohen.

Morris Rose is spending some time with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Rose, of the state road.

A marriage of February 2, 1867, was that of Lavina Weeks to Nelson Boice. The bride and groom were well known residents of the northern part of the town of Olive. A marriage on February 3 was that of Mrs. Elizabeth Winchell of Olive to Daniel Rowley of Lexington.

Mrs. Oscar Gantner and Emmett Gantner, who left in their car for Florida late in January, are now located at North Miami.

News of the death Wednesday of Charles Hogan of West Hurley came as a shock to Mr. Hogan's friends in the north reservoir section. Mr. Hogan resided in the village as a boy and young man for many years. He was a clerk at Winchell's store for a time and later had the post office at Ashokan.

George VonderOsten, for several weeks a patient at a veterans' hospital in New York, sent greetings to his friends of The Freeman and thanked them for the interest they have shown in his welfare.

Lewis Shaw, a former resident of Shokan, called on friends here Sunday.

Kiwanians Enjoy Traffic Movie

County and city law enforcement officials were among the guests at a largely attended noon meeting of Kiwanis held at the Governor Clinton Hotel Thursday. The program was of especial interest, a feature being the showing of two films on traffic control and first aid, put out by the courtesy of Chief of Police J. Allan Wood.

In addition to Chief Wood and Mayor Heiselman the city police department was represented by Commissioners George D. Logan, Joseph Diehl, Carlton S. Preston and Samuel H. Feyer. The county was represented by Sheriff Abram F. Molyneux and District Attorney Cleon B. Murray. Other guests included Dr. J. S. Baker of the Sahler Sanitarium, Dr. Clifford A. Crispell and Donald G. Tongue, Poughkeepsie Kiwanians, and Edward Lee of Chichester and C. W. Cartwright of Milwaukee who had charge of the showing of the pictures.

The first picture, "Life Savers of the Highway," featured the work done by traffic officers trained to do the right thing in case of highway accidents in which each year 37,000 people are killed and 110,000 injured. It was a plea for proper training of police officers in the principles of first aid, not that they are expected to become physicians, but that they may know what to do in case of accidents in order to prevent suffering, prevent further injury and thus save unnecessary hospital expenses. It was emphasized that they should know what to do in cases of suspended breathing, in cases of severe bleeding, in cases of shock and in the many other emergencies which they meet in the line of duty. As one example of the unfortunate result of the wrong, although good-intentioned, handling of an accident victim, was shown the case of a girl who was injured in an automobile accident. Ignorant of the fact that a fracture of the leg had been sustained, she was handled in such a manner that by the time she reached the hospital, what had been a simple fracture had become a compound fracture and she faced not only added expense but the possibility of becoming crippled for life.

The second film given, "Selective Enforcement," showed by charts and illustration the working of modern traffic enforcement and control methods as evolved by the Northwestern University Institute and endorsed by the International Association of Police Chiefs, as providing the maximum possible efficiency.

The plan is based on a study of traffic accidents as to time when they occur, the locality or localities in which they are most apt to occur and the nature of the violations that lead up to them. Knowing these facts a city charted accordingly and available traffic officers are distributed in such a manner as to most efficiently meet the needs. It was stated that following the adoption of such a plan Evanston, Ill., had shown a decrease of 47 per cent in traffic accidents and Detroit had a similar showing in the first year the plan was put into operation. Cooperation on the part of the public in notifying the police department at once in case of accidents in their neighborhood was also stressed. Incidentally it was stated that a minimum of at least four traffic officers to 10,000 of population was needed to give proper service.

An enthusiastic songfest, led by Zucca, preceded the program following which President Huben presented Vice-President Pratt Boice to report on the council meeting held at Rome, which both of them attended. Of particular interest were Pratt's statements that President Huben made the front page in the Rome daily, that Rome has one of the largest areas of any city in the U. S., that emphasis was laid on the duty of Kiwanians to keep the youth of the country from joining un-American institutions, that out of 17 prominent organizations Kiwanis has the smallest "turnover" in membership, and—that Pratt kept his notes in a fertilizer notebook.

The government is offering farmers seedling trees for as little as $2 a thousand in its reforestation and land conservation program.

Eaters—Clark Gable likes deer

He's His Favorite Cook

By The AP Feature Service

He-man movie star Clark Gable chose venison a la Gable. He wants to shoot it and cook it himself.

"I take a big chunk of deer meat and dice it. Into the pan it goes and when it starts to sizzle, I slosh in a lot of milk and flour for the gravy," he explains.

The big point of the whole thing, he adds, is to cook it in the open over a wood fire.

University Foundations For Support of Students

A fellowship is a university foundation designed for the support of students. The institution arose in the Middle Ages and originally was nothing more than a charitable foundation to defray the cost of lodging and board for needy students. At a later period it was generally granted after tests of fitness.

In the English universities, where the fellowship system attained its greatest development, the fellows were at first undergraduates, but gradually came to be chosen from those already holding the university degree. In American universities fellowships are regularly distinctions conferred to enable students to pursue advanced graduate work as distinguished from scholarships, though the term scholarship is occasionally used in this sense. They are usually endowed by private donors and produce incomes varying in amount, payable for terms of one to three years, states a writer in the Indianapolis News. They are usually open to the graduates of other colleges, and are assigned either on competitive examination or as an honorary distinction. Holders are generally expected to pursue their studies at the institution conferring the fellowship and to perform certain duties. In some cases holders may be permitted to study at other institutions, and some fellowships are specifically intended for work in foreign schools.

The number of endowed graduate fellowships has rapidly increased. Some universities offer a definite number of special fellowships, and a number of indeterminate fellowships, depending on the standing and number of applicants.

Luckless Woman Driver Naively Confesses All

GENEVA, N. Y.—No names are being mentioned, but here's the latest story being told at police headquarters on the subject of women drivers. The woman was booked by an officer after traveling the wrong way on a one-way street and then parking on the wrong side of the same street. She cheerfully answered his questions as the ticket was being written, but became alarmed when told she would have to go to court.

"Why, I can't do that," she declared. "The judge might ask to see my driver's license and I don't have one."

Patrick Henry's Famous Speech The second revolutionary convention of Virginia was held in St. John's Episcopal church at Richmond in 1775. Proposals for a peaceful settlement had been strongly advocated. On the third day, March 23, 1775, Patrick Henry, realizing that war was inevitable, overruled the opposition to resolutions for arming the Virginia militia in a speech which has since become famous. He ended: "Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God. I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

DANGEROUS SERVICE

By GRACE ELLIOTT TAYLOR

The Characters
Peter Mallone: An adventurous young reporter.
Petronella: His loyal sister.
Tony Lance: Famous foreign correspondent.

Yesterday: Petronella tells James she loves Tony Lance. Peter conquers his job, becomes unmanageable.

Chapter 15

Michael's Party

THREE months had passed. It was springtime of 1932.

Tomorrow, Petronella must start work again from 9:30 till 6 o'clock. The Trillight Insurance Company was not bad, she supposed. But it was far from good. If only Martin Rowdon would hurry up, and offer her a post at the News office! In the meantime, she must type dull letters, among pleasant, dull people. She supposed that was partly why she felt so lonely. She had to go to work. That and other things. Nothing seemed very right, these days. Aunt Maisie was not well. She had had to see a specialist just after Christmas, but the famous man's diet, and prescription, did not seem to be doing her much good. Then there was the quarrel with James. He scarcely ever came near her, since their fight about Colin coming to live at the flat. Colin was not with them any longer, but James still believed she had felt more than a friendship and sympathy for him.

Peter and Petrel climbed the narrow, dark staircase to the flat. They let themselves into the tiny hall. It smelled airless. Petronella threw down her book and parcels, and opened the nearest window. Outside, lay mist-blue darkness, faint stars above bright lights.

"What about a new frock and hat for you?" suggested Peter, unexpectedly and bluntly.

His sister turned. She looked at herself dispassionately in the hall mirror. So Peter thought that she was looking dowdy, and unattractive. What did it matter, if she wore old clothes, so long as they were good clothes, and she looked neat and fresh? Tony Lance was not here to see her clothes.

A strange sound from the sitting-room startled Petronella. It began like the last creak of a tuck-toe, and ended with a shout.

"Petrel! Here's a letter from Rowdon! Come and read it quick!"

He was standing there, dazedly. She took the letter, but the words danced before her eyes, after she had read the first few lines.

Peter was not entitled to a holiday, but if he liked to pay his expenses when he arrived there, the News would pay his return fare to Germany. He could be gone two or three weeks. It would help him in his struggle with the language.

"I'm to visit Berlin, Munich, the Rhine, the Ruhr!" cried Peter. "I can write some articles on my impressions of the troubled state of the country, and living them back with me. If I get the chance, I'm to hear Hitler and Goering speak. Rowdon says he probably won't use them. But as was the case in Burma, I may strike lucky. It is my chance! Don't you see?"

"Peter! Oh, Peter! Have we anything in the place to drink?"

She sherry Colin sent! Suddenly, they were wildly excited. The future, thought Peter, seemed suddenly to be opening up.

"Seems a pity you can't come with me."

She dismissed the possibility instantly. "Of course you'll do better alone! What is happening in Germany now? I shall like standing on the edge of your newspaper rack, darling, looking on."

"Working up for the elections. Von Hindenburg should get a majority. The people trust him. But the Nazis are climbing all the time. There's going to be a lot of trouble, if the Communists try to stop them."

No Premonition
 "PETER, don't be reckless. Don't act without thinking. Carry the things you want to write in your head, rather than on paper. When will you go?"

"Rowdon suggests next Friday, the ninth. Petrel, since I'm going, there's something you've got to know. It'll save you a having a shock. It was the reason I was telling you to buy some new togs, really. The reason I'd like to stand you a new hat, if you'd let me. Because though James is a darn nice chap, I know you're not really caring much, if he does take Molly around occasionally."

Petronella stiffened. "Quickly, what are you trying to tell me?"

"That you might run into Tony Lance some day soon. He has left the staff. He has left China. But he came into the office the other day. You'd want to look nice."

"Where is he?"

"In London, for all I know." Petronella saw Peter off from Victoria a week later. Her own luggage was in the cloakroom. She was going home, after Michael Brane's cocktail party.

"Tell Mike I'm sorry to miss it, but that I'll drink his health in dunkel beer," said Peter.

"Yes, take care of yourself, darling. Goodbye." She filled in the time, till the party, by shopping. Father had sent her five pounds. She bought a wide brimmed white straw hat, which suited her. It looked nice with this new white linen suit, she thought, pleased. It made her look cooler than she felt. It was so close, and thunder, in London streets. She had almost decided to catch an earlier train home, not to go to Mike's beautiful all-white apartment. But the next two weeks would be very quiet. She liked meeting friends. She decided to stay for the party.

No feeling of fate, no inkling of premonition warned Petronella that, when she was shown into the sitting-room, the first person she would see would be Tony Lance.

He was leaning against the mantelpiece, talking to a girl in a gray suit. When he saw her, he straightened. He forgot to listen to what the girl was saying to him. His eyes met Petronella's, and his straight mouth spoke her name, soundlessly. She raised her hand, and gave him a casual little wave, across the crowded room. What else could she do? He looked relieved. He smiled, a little faintly. Michael was power at the flat.

"Hello, Petrel! So Peter is off to Germany, I hear? Sorry he couldn't come. You're looking very nice, my dear. Cocktail, or sherry? Do you know?" he commenced introducing her to the people nearest them.

She did not hear their names. She smiled, and talked to them. She was apparently calm, even, she believed, natural. It was as if this shock had frozen her. Tony Lance was over there, behind her. She was waiting. In a moment, he would make his way through the babel. She would have to speak to him.

But he did not come. Gradually, Petronella felt her first control ebbing from her. She was no longer numb. Her power at the flat was returning to her. She was acutely alive, acutely miserable.

"But surely," said the man to whom she was talking, "you don't really think that?" What didn't she really think? But it was all right. She heard herself answering him.

No Escape
 STRANGE, how your mind was divided into parts, and the parts could work separately. What a fool she had been, to think that Tony would come. He was with that girl, the girl in the perfectly tailored gray flannel suit and the little slouch hat. Misery enveloped her. Her head throbbled. She was young, and inadequate. Completely incapable of handling a man like Tony Lance. That girl was sophisticated, lazily sure of herself, and of her own attraction.

"My clothes are all wrong," thought Petrel. That girl was the right accompaniment to a man like Tony. The kind of woman he could take anywhere, to Moscow, or Alexandria, or Budapest, at a moment's notice. She would arrive looking immaculate. "Whereas I," thought Petrel, "white linen, white straw hat, creases, limpness, little girl clothes!"

She was not looking at them, but she was aware of them. They were laughing together. She felt as insulted as if Tony had hit her across the face. Fool, fool, she upbraided. All this time, she had been imagining that he had loved her. In reality, he went everywhere with another, a more suitable girl. This party has a nightmare. She must escape. He must never know, for certain, what she had felt. She had suffered she had endured for him. Unless she got away now, he would read it in her eyes, her foolish, untutored eyes.

"Michael, thank you for a lovely party. I have to go early."

"Goodbye, Petrel. Sorry you didn't talk to Tony Lance."

"We read his articles." They moved towards the door.

"He's just been given some sort of hush-hush job with the Foreign Office."

"Really? How clever of him!" Looking up, Petronella found that Tony had left the girl in gray, beside the fireplace. He stood, barring their way to the door.

"Talk of the devil!" cried Mike, gladly. "I was just telling Petrel. Malone about you, old boy. Petrel, this is—"

She scarcely looked at Tony. In her mind, resentment and anger predominated. He must not know that she had cared.

"We have met, Michael. Rangoon, wasn't it? Rather an unusual evening. I seem to remember, in the middle of one of the riots."

She hated her own flippant voice, but pride insisted that she should employ it. Michael left them together.

"Yes, Rangoon. I remember perfectly." He spoke gravely, awkwardly, as if he were shy. Petronella was surprised into meeting his eyes.

"Perhaps you are one of those people who has an excellent memory for the things, and a rotten one for others." The man who had spoken, she was ashamed. His eyes were not triumphant. Love should know no obligations. Nothing had changed between them. The same attraction was there. She was sure he felt it, too. Even while his mind denied its importance, she told herself. She was helpless against Tony's mind. But he felt as she did. That they had met yesterday. That they had known one another a lifetime.

"I love him," she thought. "I can't escape."

By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — W. Ray Johnston looked back today on 25 years of making bread-and-butter movies, and he found them good.

Johnston, a silver-jubilee at 47, will be toasting sometime in March with his associates in Monogram, but the actual anniversary of his entry into movies is in January.

That was when he went from Iowa to New York, or from mausoleums to movies. He was 22, and he had a new mail-order dress suit besides a job with the old "Than" house film company, 45 minutes from Broadway, in New Rochelle.

As an employee of a many-faceted local firm in Waterloo, Iowa, Johnston had specialized in mausoleums. The movies maybe seemed more cheerful—but the important thing is that he went, he wore his dress suit the night he arrived, he got to be a leading man, and today he's president of one of the few movie companies that never has had a "bad year."

"AS AN actor they said I belonged to the Immobile, A. B. school," he recalled today, "and they were right. If there lived a worse man before or since, I've never seen him. I decided you didn't need an expressive face behind the camera, and I've stayed there ever since."

The title of his first "starring" one-reeler was "His I. O. U."

And today—without a genuine "epic" in the list—his name is on some of the industry's biggest money-makers. Like other "independents," he is content to leave the "epics" to the majors—and to leave the gambling to them, too.

A couple of years ago Johnston's concern made a movie called "Boy of the Streets." (It's his theory that a title with "boy" or "streets" in it can't miss either, so this was a sure thing doubly.) Anyway, the picture lifted a waning Jackie Cooper back to a stardom that has earned him probably $100,000 since—and that brought up the question of stellar come-backs via the independents, which are often called the "burying-ground of stars."

"WE GET stars either on the way down, or the way up," he said. "And I think that stars have a good chance to come back with us—if they get the right vehicle."

Other Johnston success formulas—

"Let the majors go wild on bids for current stage and book hits. We'll spend as high as $15,000 for a story, but have never spent more. (This figure went for the Gene Stratton-Porter hits.)"

"If a picture can make an audience cry—and not just cry from boredom—the chances are nine out of 10 that it'll be a hit."

Nameless Revolt
 Santa Monica, Calif.—Local police may drop that campaign against jaywalkers.

To date, some 150 violating pedestrians have refused police their names, as many others gave phony—or funny—names. One woman sat in the middle of Santa Monica Boulevard, tied up traffic 10 minutes, defied officers to arrest her.

With the numerous epidemics—whoooping cough, flu or what have you—the following originated by a 10-year old friend, seems quite apt at this time:

First, I had the whooping cough then I had the mumps;

When I had the measles I almost bumped the bumps.

And when I had the whooping cough I thought I'd crack a stat.

When I had the measles I was red, but I felt blue;

But the worst of my diseases was the rotten old flu.

Professor (to his wife at breakfast)—It's surprising to think how ignorant we all are. Nearly every man is a specialist in his own particular line, and in consequence we are all as narrow-minded, as it is possible for us to be.

Wife—Yes, dear.

Professor—I, for instance, am ashamed of my failure to keep abreast of modern science. Take the electric light, for example, I haven't the least idea how it works.

Wife (giving him a patronizing look as she smiled)—Why, Herbert, I'm ashamed of you. It's so simple. You simply press a switch, that's all.

Modern Miss—Mother, did you ever flirt when you were young?

Mother—Yes, dear, I'm afraid I did.

Modern Miss—And were you punished for it?

Mother—Yes, dear, I married your father.

The man who brags "I run things at my house," usually refers to the furnace, the lawn mower, the errands, etc., remarked a confounded grouch the other day.

Dad was trying to read, but Little Willie was pestering him with questions:

Little Willie—Dad, does the ostrich sometimes bury its head in the ground?

Dad (testily)—Yes.

Little Willie—Then how does it remember where it buried it?

Believe it or not, a lot of buyers are looking for salesmen who are honest, and well-informed about their products, and who don't practice too much salesmanship.

 Mr. and Mrs. John D. Calvert, of Joshua, Texas, 91 and 87 years old respectively, recently celebrated their 72nd wedding anniversary.

One day when Mark Twain was very busy in his study writing, his little daughter asked where Daddy was and was told that she must be very quiet and not disturb Daddy, because he was upstairs writing an anecdote. Not long after, the doorbell rang and the little girl answered. The caller asked if Mr. Clemens was in and the little miss proudly replied: "Yes, sir, he's in, but you can't see him, because he's upstairs riding a nanny goat."

First One (of the group sitting around the camp fire)—Ever heard this one? A dog was tied to a rope 14 feet long. Twenty feet away was a fat, juicy bone. How did the dog get to the bone?

Second One (yawning)—Oh, that's an old one. You want one of us to say, "I give up," and then you'll say, "That's what the dog did."

First One—No, you're wrong, for the dog got the bone.

Second One (skeptical)—Well, how did he get it?

First One—The other end of the rope wasn't tied.

A cameraman working for the educational department of a film company, met a sarcastic farmer in town and said:

Cameraman—I've just been taking some moving pictures of life on your farm.

Farmer (curiously)—Did you catch any of my men in motion?

Cameraman—Sure I did.

Farmer (shaking his head reflectively)—Movies are a wonderful thing.

Movement for State Budget Cut

Herbert Sears of Marlborough, noting that the press of the state has been cooperating wholeheartedly in the campaign for a lower state budget, asks The Freeman to aid by publishing the following appeal to Ulster county taxpayers: To the Citizens of Ulster County: Over 100 civic, taxpayer and real estate organizations have joined the fight for a reduction in the 1939 budget.

Reports indicate the biggest tax revolt in the history of the Empire State against increased tax levies is in the making.

The budget as submitted to the Legislature by the governor calls for $111,682,127—the largest in the history of the state.

Now is the time to act in order to secure a reduction in the budget submitted by the governor.

Senator Wicks and Assemblyman Conway have assured me of their desire to cooperate in any movement towards economy in public expenditures and lower tax levies.

Write your representatives in the Legislature requesting a 25 per cent reduction in the state budget, thereby upholding their hands against pressure groups of organized minorities.

Unless the American people arouse themselves from their lethargy and assert their sovereign power and drive from office those who would squander the wealth and substance of the nation, the republic has a rendezvous with economic disaster.

The safety of the state lies in an aroused and alert citizenry. Join the movement for retrenchment in public expenditures and a return of prosperity and contentment of the people.

HERBERT SEARS.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—With Max Adelbert Baer in town, crochets in bloom, and January acting like a kittenish co-ed, screw-ball stories would seem to be in order. And so, if you have already heard this, kindly pretend that it is new.

A nice young man, a very tipsy young man, passed a milk truck while walking home in the early dew. He thought it would be fun to speak to the horse, so he tipped his hat and said, "Good Morning."

To his utter amazement the horse nodded its head and replied, "I want to wish you a good morning, too."

"Why," ejaculated the young man, "I didn't know you could talk."

"Oh, sure," replied the nag. "After all, I haven't been a truck horse all my life. I once came in 3rd in the Derby."

"Well, I'm a son of a gun," muttered the souse, moving off with a shake of his head.

But after he had proceeded a few feet he turned back to the man who drove the milk wagon.

"Listen," said the drunk. "I can't get over that horse."

"I don't get you," said the driver.

"Why, he talks—he makes conversation."

"Oh, that? Sure, he can talk. But don't let him fill you with that Kentucky derby stuff. He's been a truck horse all his life."

THIS scene I observed around dusk on a blustery day.

A man of about 40, well dressed and wearing a derby, got out of a cab at Madison and 43rd. He looked at his watch, gazed up and down the street, finally began to tap his feet. It was evident that something was agitating him. He lit a cigarette, smoked just a couple of puffs, gazed it beneath his foot.

Then a young woman came out of a building and said, "Hello." He quickly stepped close to her and asked:

"Have you got them?"

"SURE," she said. She smiled at him, a strange, peculiar sort of smile. From her handbag she drew a stack of letters, maybe a dozen in all. He flipped through them quickly, looked up and said, "Gee." It was more of a sigh than a word.

From his own pocket he took an envelope. It must have contained money, because he heard him say, "I hope you enjoy this. You've certainly earned it."

What else was said I couldn't hear, but presently the man lifted his hat and the girl went away. Then he got into a cab, and the last I saw of him he was tearing those letters into a thousand pieces.

D. A. R. Hears Prison Head Speak

Wiltwyck Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, were addressed Thursday afternoon by Dr. Leo J. Palmer, superintendent of the Wallkill State Prison. During the short business meeting which preceded the address the group voted to support a resolution to the state legislature to make Oriskany battlefield a state park.

Two special meetings also were announced. February 7, the annual meeting of the Incorporated Society of Wiltwyck Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution and the George Washington's Birthday Meeting, February 22.

Dr. Palmer gave a vivid speech on the "Methods of Social Rehabilitation of Criminals" and opened his talk by reminding the group that crime annually costs the nation far more than the upkeep of the army and navy combined.

He said that the problem of the treatment of criminals is one of the greatest. Parole is one of the major means now used by prisons for rehabilitation of the criminal, although 20 per cent violate their parole, and 50 to 60 per cent are serving their third sentence. Some prisoners are treated with kindness, others are treated with reason and others won't understand anything but harshness.

Dr. Palmer gave illustrations of whipping of prisoners at some prisons when he first began prison work. When he questioned a man who had had 17 lashes he found that the prisoner was glad he had been whipped. He said he had been afraid he was getting "soft" and was happy to know he "could suit take it." Men assigned to the under quarters and rationed on bread and water tried to see which man could save the most bread when he was released.

He also spoke of the treatment of southern prisoners where a "trustee" tries to goad a new prisoner into escaping and then shoots him when he tries with the result that the "trustee" is given greater privileges for stopping an attempted escape.

Dr. Palmer also stated that there are more prisoners in the north than in the south. He emphasized that the only effective way to treat crime is to prevent it, but that no certain method of preventing it has been evolved. Three things will contribute to its prevention, self discipline, respect for the rights of others and a respect for the law.

The schools, church and youth organizations are the best securities against crime. Dr. Palmer said. Citizens should not be content to contribute money alone to these organizations, but should give their time as well.

In conclusion he said, "Youngsters in school today are the same who will be the prisoners 10 years from now."

At the close of Dr. Palmer's talk, a social hour was enjoyed with Mrs. Harry L. Edson and Mrs. M. S. Conklin, hostesses.

Baptist C. E. Elects Officers

On Wednesday evening in the assembly rooms the Albany Avenue Baptist Christian Endeavor Society elected a new slate of officers for the ensuing year. Charles Gumaer was elected president to succeed Francis Skerritt. Other members to be voted into office were Mabel Terwilliger, treasurer, Alice Rockwell, secretary, and Audrey Greene, treasurer. All of these officials will take office immediately. Plans are under way to have the official ceremonies at which time the newly elected officers will be sworn in.

Cause of 'Singing Sand'

Problem for Geologists

"Singing," "musical" and "barking" sand are names given to certain sands and gravels which emit peculiar sounds when shaken, stirred with a stick, walked upon, or driven over with a vehicle.

There is a difference of opinion among geologists as to the cause of musical sands, notes a writer in the Indianapolis News. Strictly speaking, the sound produced is not musical. According to the United States geological survey, it is better described as something between a crunch and a squeak, similar in some respects to the sound produced by snow when it is trodden upon or driven over in cold weather.

But it has, as a rule, a fairly definite pitch and a tone relatively pure, and therefore while it is not a musical note, it is more than a mere noise. Such sand was known to the ancients and is mentioned in the works of many early writers.

Marco Polo, the celebrated traveler, found singing sand in the deserts of central Asia. A hundred or more localities where the phenomenon has been noted have been described or listed in geological literature. It is found chiefly on beaches where it is usually confined to the dry relatively firm sand above the ordinary water level but moistened by the waves during storms or high tides. Beach sand that is continually moist, as well as the loose dry sand heaped by the wind beyond the reach of the waves, generally does not "sing." However, occasionally musical sand is found in dunes and in deserts, far from any body of water, where all the sand is perpetually dry and is constantly moved about by the wind.

The phenomenon seems to have no relation to the composition of the water, for singing sands occur on shores of the ocean, of salt lakes and of fresh lakes. Nor does it appear that the shape of the grains forming the sand and gravel is responsible for the phenomenon. Some musical sand consists largely of sharp, angular grains, with few smoothly rounded particles, while some consists almost wholly of even, smoothly rounded and well-polished grains.

Some specimens of singing sand retain their "musical" property after being kept in cans, bottles or sacks for years, whereas other specimens completely lose it. Two investigators found that nearly all samples, when shaken or rubbed together for a considerable time, gradually lost their musical property until it finally disappeared completely.

The corporation known as the Detroit Young Men's society was incorporated under an act of the state legislature which met in 1836 between the time the state constitution had been approved March 26, 1836, and admission of the state into the Union January 26, 1837. The defendant, Scott, argued there was no such corporation as the legislature had no legal existence in the interval between approval of the constitution and admission as a state.

Judge Ransom, in a long opinion, held that under Article 5 of the Ordinance of 1787, the right of a territory to have a permanent constitution and government when it should contain 60,000 free inhabitants was definitely granted, subject to no abridgement. Therefore, he held the act to incorporate the society was legal and valid as "the act of an independent and sovereign state."

Gathering Camel's Hair

The manner in which camel hair is secured is unique and interesting. The hair is not shorn, plucked or cut off. In the springtime the camel sheds its hair, and in the trail of caravans there follows a man whose job is to gather up the clumps of hair as they fall, placing them in a basket on the back of the last camel in the caravan. The hair is usually sold in the first town the caravan reaches, eventually being transported over desert and mountain passes to various dealers in the shipping ports of China, where it is sorted for shipment to the western world.

Tombs of Mummies in Desert

On the desert of Paracas are tombs of mummies seated with knees to chin and swathed in voluminous folds of cloth. On the high plateau of Bolivia mummies are encased not in cloth but in neatly woven baskets made of the tortora reed, of which the famous Lake Titicaca balsams are made. The mummy baskets usually have a small opening from which the grisly mummy face peers out. In the quaint little museum at Valparaiso, Chile, are to be seen an earlier type of mummy, suggestive of the Egyptian—the only South American type not in a sitting position. They are crudely masked, laid out like very early Egyptian forms, and filled with mud.

Often You're Unaware Your Speech Is Faulty

But Others Notice Your Errors

"Oh dear," says Mary. "HADN'T OUGHT TO LET you take me!" If only her hand could explain tactfully how Mary's poor English led the Smiths to snub her!

A rising young man, John has learned to avoid grammatical slips like "hadn't ought to let you." He would correctly say "SHOULDN'T HAVE LET YOU." But will Mary keep up with him?

She can easily—by checking her speech, finding the little differences that rate one as top-grade or just so-so. People worth knowing don't say ALL THE FASTER SHE CAN GO, but AS FAST AS SHE CAN GO. They say BEHIND her, not IN BACK OF her.

A meager vocabulary—depending on common catchwords—is another give-away. Don't harp on phrases like "dead tired." "The worse for wear."

Why not strive for vivid new ways to say things, phrases like "numb with weariness," "dilated and seedy." Do you overwork adjectives like "lovely"? Say instead "refreshing," "enjoyable."

Easy to make your conversation a real asset! Our 32-page booklet tells how to add to and improve your vocabulary. Lists common errors, gives correct forms, tells what slang phrases to avoid.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR VOCABULARY to The Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

People Require Tons of Food, Drink in Lifetime

Do you realize that if you live to be 70 you will have consumed 1.75 times your own weight? asks a writer in London Answers magazine.

The average person requires over 100 tons of food and drink during his lifetime.

Every day 1 1/2 ounces of tea is needed for you, so that by the time you are a septuagenarian a ton of leaves has brewed 10,000 pints of tea for your delictation.

Two tons of bacon and 12,000 eggs are needed, too, for your nourishment during that period, not to mention the beef from 20 full-sized bullocks, 8 tons of potatoes, 6 tons of fish, half a million green peas, and enough lettuce to carpet a tennis court.

Upon your lifetime's loaf, weighing nearly 15 tons, you will spread a pat of butter weighing over 2 tons, and your accompanying wedge of cheese will weigh some 3 cwt.

Presidents as Slave-Owners

Ten men who have occupied the presidency were owners of slaves. They were Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Tyler, Polk, Taylor, Johnson and Grant. The first eight of these were slave-owners in the full sense of the term and most of them had slaves while holding the office of President. Andrew Johnson bought a few slaves whom he kept as personal servants, but he never sold one of them. Ulysses S. Grant was at one time joint owner of at least one slave and accordingly was technically a slave-owner. After his marriage his father-in-law presented a slave boy to him and his wife.

Expects Another Baby

The Hague, The Netherlands, Feb. 3 (AP)—Crown Princess Juliana expects another baby "about the middle of August." An official statement today said she would rest, upon medical advice, "in view of the well-founded hope that the happy event is to be expected about the middle of August." The royal family will visit Switzerland late this month.

Mother's Standby in Treating CHILDREN'S COLDS

FOR RELIEF OF colds, coughs, and night-coughs, rub Vicks VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. Its powerful vapor soothes inflamed local congestion and helps the youngster relax into restful sleep.

Not contagious and irritated throat due to colds, put VapoRub on the child's tongue. It melts, bathes the throat with comforting medication. Also massage on throat and chest.

FOR HEAD-COLDS "stuffed" and misery, melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Breathe the child's head in the steamy vapors. This loosens phlegm, clears air-passages.

FOR HEAD-COLDS "stuffed" and misery, melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Breathe the child's head in the steamy vapors. This loosens phlegm, clears air-passages.

WE HAVE LEARNED
Many years of assisting at times of bereavement have broadened our knowledge of how better to serve. Sincere interest in the service we are privileged to render has enlarged our perception of what Funeral SERVICE can be made to afford. But it is in deeds more than words that true service is reflected. And our deeds are known.

Local Death Record

Funeral services for Mrs. Goldie Ann Smith were held Thursday afternoon from the late home 37 Hurley avenue. The Rev. Arthur G. Carroll, pastor of St. James M. E. Church, officiated. Bearers were Scott Vining, Grant McGinnis, John Mazzuca, William Hopper, Norman Canziani and Herbert Cole. Burial was in the family plot in Wiltwyck cemetery.

The funeral of Charles E. Hogan, who died in West Hurley, Wednesday, will be held at his late home Saturday at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Woodstock cemetery. Mr. Hogan had been ill for a long time. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Ruth Herick Hogan; his mother, Mrs. Julia Hogan of Shokan; two brothers, George of Shokan and Robert of Kingston; and one sister, Mrs. John Hamilton of Kingston.

Mrs. Esther McGowan, wife of the late Peter McGowan, died Thursday after a brief illness. Mrs. McGowan was a devoted member of St. Mary's Church and was favorably known throughout the city. Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Andrew Rathgeber, and two grandchildren. The funeral will be held from the late home, 182 Hasbrouck avenue, Monday morning at 9 o'clock, thence to St. Mary's Church, where at 9:45 a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of her soul. Burial in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

New Paltz, Feb. 3 — Funeral services were conducted for Mrs. Laura Mericle DuBois, widow of Wilfred B. DuBois, who died at her home in Rome, at the funeral parlors of V. T. Pine in New Paltz on Wednesday at 2 o'clock, with the Rev. Gerrit Wulfschlegel, minister of the New Paltz Reformed Church, officiating. The DuBois' were formerly of New Paltz and for several years partners in the DuBois and Gregory Drug Store here. Mrs. DuBois is survived by a number of cousins, including Ida Palen of this village and Lewis Palen, also of this village. Burial was in the New Paltz cemetery.

Mrs. Minnie C. Post Terpending, 72, wife of Lafayette Terpending, died at her home in Port Ewen, Thursday evening. Mrs. Terpending complained of illness after her dinner. She took a second attack and died of a heart condition. She was born in Port Ewen, the daughter of the late Jeremiah and Emily Traver Post. A life-long member of the Port Ewen Reformed Church. She was admired for her sterling Christian character and friendliness. Besides her husband, she leaves two daughters, Mrs. Daniel Cody of Brooklyn and Mrs. George Fowler of Port Ewen; one granddaughter, Janis Fowler; two sisters, Mrs. Fred Giddings and Mrs. William Runk of Brooklyn; two brothers, Walter of Port Ewen and Arthur of Newburgh. Her funeral will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. with burial in Port Ewen cemetery.

John Donovan, of 149 West O'Reilly street, died early this morning following an illness of several weeks. Mr. Donovan for over 25 years had been a foreman at the Universal Road Machinery Company, where his work as a machinist and director of various work under his control was recognized by the company as outstanding. Always enjoying the respect and cooperation of his fellow workers, Mr. Donovan's loss will be keenly felt by them. Surviving is his wife, Libbie Doherty Donovan, and one son, Floyd J. Donovan, of Buffalo, and one grandchild. His body is resting in the Henry J. Bruck Home for Funerals, 27 Smith avenue, from where the funeral will be held on Monday morning at 9 o'clock, thence to St. Mary's Church where a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul at 9:30 a. m. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery. Fraternally Mr. Donovan was a member of the Order of Maccabees and Sons of Veterans of the Civil War, Tappan Camp No. 1.

Mrs. Mary O'Marra, wife of the late Cornelius O'Marra, died early this morning at the family residence, No. 82 Cedar street, following a lengthy illness. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Frank L. Meagher, and Miss Anas O'Marra, four sons, Daniel of this city, Martin of South Norwalk, Conn., John of Jersey City and Frank of Huntington, L. I. Twenty-five grandchildren also survive. She was born in Interlaken and has resided in this city for the past 40 years where she made a large number of friends who held her in the highest esteem. She was a devoted member of St. Joseph's Church during her long residence in Kingston and also a member of the L. C. B. A., St. Anne's Branch No. 968. The funeral will be held from her late home, No. 82 Cedar street, on Monday at 9:30 o'clock and 10 o'clock at St. Joseph's Church where a solemn high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of her soul. Burial will be made in St. Mary's cemetery. Friends are requested to omit flowers.

About the Folks
Max Reben, the city's WPA purchasing agent, is ill at his home this week.

Mrs. Dwight McEntee of Orchard street, who has been a patient at the Kingston Hospital for several days, is improving.

CARD OF THANKS
We wish to thank all the relatives, friends, neighbors and the Jr. Order American Mechanics for their many acts of kindness extended during the illness and at the time of the death of Mr. O. W. Rose, also for the beautiful floral tributes.

Students and Faculty Organize Flying Club
CLEVELAND—Students at Case School of Applied Science are taking to the air.

More than a dozen students and two faculty members have joined a newly formed flying club and soon will begin their instruction at Airport Service, Cleveland Municipal airport—largest city-owned airport in the country.

The president's office of the school has consented to the idea, which was conceived by Howard Dearborn, freshman, and Ray Donovan, sophomore.

"I think it's a great idea," said John R. Weste, assistant professor of mechanical engineering, "and I've joined the club myself."

The other faculty member to join was Stanton L. Davis, assistant history professor. Both were already pilots.

University Students Give Hitch-Hike Cards
COLUMBIA, S. C.—Students of the University of South Carolina who "thumb" their way over the country will henceforth leave "hitch-hiking cards" with their benefactors. The cards will give the name and address of the student, list the reasons why he wanted a ride, thank the motorist and ask him to visit the university campus.

Snow and Ice Cause
Unlike Canada geese, the snows seldom fly in V-formation. Adult snow geese have pure white bodies with black wings, with pink or pale purplish bills. Blue geese, about the same size as snows, have white heads and necks, grayish-brown bodies (not blue as the name indicates), dark red bills and purplish-red legs. The young are sooty-gray or brown.

Possible Rise in Building Volume
Figures for residential building and engineering construction awards for January, reported yesterday, indicate a possible rise in volume in this field during 1939 that may bring it up to the 1930 levels and even to those of 1929. According to the F. W. Dodge Corp. awards for residential building during the first three weeks in January, reports covering 27 eastern states, show a total of $50,095,000, a gain of 112 per cent over the same period in 1938. Engineering construction awards for the full month of January totaled $31,693,000, also the highest figure since 1929. Gains in this latter class thus far are due to increased state, municipal and federal work, a great number of which was ready to go when business prospects warranted it.

More than seasonal upturn in freight car loadings featured the week of January 28, total being 594,379 cars, a gain of 4,020 over the preceding week. Greatly increased coal shipments, as a result of demand for coal because of the continued below freezing temperatures, more than offset decreases in other commodities.

A statistical report issued by the ICC indicates that loss of traffic by railroads to competing transportation agencies is tapering off; also that traffic loss due to relocation of industries and other economic changes is relatively static today.

Stocks were firm throughout the day Thursday, with increasing strength shown in afternoon trading and activity greatest last hour. Volume was still low, total being 709,000 shares. All classes showed an advance for the day, industrials being up 1.81 points, to 144.62 in the Dow-Jones average; rails gaining 0.82 point, to 30.20 and utilities advancing 0.85 point, to 24.12. On foreign exchanges prices generally held steady.

Commodity markets generally were quiet. There was a sharp advance in cocoa on reports that the British government had designated cocoa as an essential food product and urged manufacturers to accumulate at least a year's supply. Silk reached the highest levels since 1937. Wheat was up fractionally in Chicago. New crop cotton futures were lower. Wholesale commodity price index was up slightly for the week ended January 28, but 4 1/2 per cent below a year ago.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes has denied reports that he was sponsoring legislation which would establish the Public Works Administration as a permanent billion dollars a year permanent works project.

The Grand Union Co. yesterday declared a dividend of 50 cents on its $3 preferred stock, in preceding quarters had paid 25 cents each. Vick Chemical voted the usual ten cents extra in addition to regular quarterly of 50 cents on common. National Union Fire Insurance authorized $1.50 and $1 extra. Belding-Corpuscle Co. ordered regular quarterly of $1 on common and $1.75 on preferred. U. S. Play Card ordered 50 cents on common. Schaeffer Pen declared an extra of 25 cents in addition to a dividend of $1 on common announced January sales but for any in the history of the company excepting in 1929.

Republic Steel reported net loss of $7,997,525 in 1938 as against net income of $9,044,147, or $1.14 a share in 1937. American Steel Foundries had net loss of $1,750,235, compared with net income of $3,617,751, or $2.88 a share in previous year.

National Dairy Products had estimated net of equal to about $1.70 a share in 1938, vs. $1.50 a share in 1937.

Sears Roebuck sales for January show an increase of 6.3 per cent over January 1938.

Reflecting an increase in profits since last autumn Westinghouse Electric Co. declared a five per cent profit-sharing bonus for its workers for January. Paid four per cent in December and three per cent in November.

Victims Are Numerous
Tucson, N. M., Feb. 3 (AP)—Frost bite victims were numerous in New Mexico as the worst February snowstorms in a decade rolled over the state yesterday.

But Denver Allen made news with a pattenlike bite. Allen suffered the unusual bite while bunting jackrabbits. Rattlers usually hibernate for the winter.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—Efforts to extend Thursday's rally in the stock market met with scant response today and leading issues drifted off fractions to more than a point.

Selling was exceptionally light from the start, with the ticker tape feature at a standstill. A few final hours were in evidence near the final hour, but support was notably timid throughout the greater part of the list. Transfers were at the rate of approximately 600,000 shares.

Although nervousness over the foreign scene appeared to have abated somewhat, traders inclined to step carefully in view of the Mussolini speech, due tomorrow, which, it was thought, might tip the market scales either way. In addition, chances of a this week's rise were believed to have been inspired the cashing in of paper gains by some speculative forces.

Bonds, on the other hand, continued to move selectively higher. Commodities were slightly mixed. European markets were quiet and steady.

In the sliding division were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, American Telephone, Anaconda, U. S. Rubber, Glenn Martin, Westinghouse, du Pont, Allied Chemical, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central and Loft.

Resistant were North American, Sears Roebuck, Chesapeake & Ohio and International Harvester. Backward in the curb were Electric Bond & Share, Lockheed, Midvale and Gulf Oil. Preferred stocks of Tennessee Electric Power and Alabama Power scored wide upturns on a few sales.

Divide House When Divorced
Formal, legal marriage is largely dispensed with among the native population on Barbados island and so legal divorces are superfluous. But there is the problem of the house when a household breaks up. The custom is to divide that by a partition. Then the complainant picks up one half and walks away with it, probably planning to join it to another bisected home. The defendant remains in the stationary half. Maybe some other moving mate will add a complementary room to it later on. It's a very practical idea in a climate that permits featherweight dwellings.

Backwest production in the United States dropped from an annual 1927-28 average of 5,569,000 bushels to 5,622,000 bushels in 1938.

Prizes From "Lost World"
Scientists collect many live specimens of rare plants and animals from the little-known "Lost World" of the British Guiana Highlands. Their principal prize is the largest species of ant in the world. No pleasant place is British Guiana, with its hot sultry climate, its unhealthy conditions, its near unapproachable jungles. Almost 90 per cent of the land is covered with heavy tropical growth. Sugar and diamonds make it a valuable colony. Little is known as to the extent of the diamond fields. The world's highest waterfall was discovered in the heart of them.

Mighty "White Dwarfs"
In the depths of space are a number of planetary nebulae—clouds of stars—the center stars of which are the hottest known to astronomy. Abnormally hot and abnormally small, these center stars are known as "white dwarfs." One such is about half the size of this earth, but is so dense that it contains 1,000,000 times as much substance—its density being 36,000,000 times that of water. In other words, while a cubic foot of water on earth contains 1,000 ounces, a cubic foot of matter in this star contains 1,000,000 tons. A pun head of this stary matter would crush a man to death, says London Tit-Bits magazine.

$2,700 Found
New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—A former city subway maintenance man, Edward J. Rigney, said by aides of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey to have confessed stealing nearly $25,000 from nickel turnstiles, faced charges of grand larceny and forgery today. A search of the Rigney home, Dewey's office said, uncovered $2,700 hidden in cardboard containers.

Formal, legal marriage is largely dispensed with among the native population on Barbados island and so legal divorces are superfluous. But there is the problem of the house when a household breaks up. The custom is to divide that by a partition. Then the complainant picks up one half and walks away with it, probably planning to join it to another bisected home. The defendant remains in the stationary half. Maybe some other moving mate will add a complementary room to it later on. It's a very practical idea in a climate that permits featherweight dwellings.

New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—A former city subway maintenance man, Edward J. Rigney, said by aides of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey to have confessed stealing nearly $25,000 from nickel turnstiles, faced charges of grand larceny and forgery today. A search of the Rigney home, Dewey's office said, uncovered $2,700 hidden in cardboard containers.

Port Jervis Plays Kingston High at the Auditorium Tonight

KELLY'S CORNER • BY JOE KELLY

Sapp Scores 26 for Elks—
Weather Bad for Hockey

Lou Sapp covered himself with glory scoring 26 points for the Elks last night. His high makes a new City Basketball League record. The kid dug the ball up himself most of the time too, which adds to his accomplishment. Ray Schneider of the Uptown Merchants has scored 105 points in 10 games. That's a big record. There should be a lot of fun at the state championship down-hill ski run in Phenicia Sunday. And thrills galore as the snow sports come zooming down the mile stretch. Those supposed to know say Pop Warner isn't physically up to ever becoming an active coach again. There wasn't much of a gang out to greet Max Schmeling, who came in wearing his same old hat. Mickey Cochrane says he likes the auto business so well he doesn't care if he ever goes back into baseball. That Johnny Munski of Missouri may see Glenn Cunningham what a pair of heels look like tomorrow night.

That story about Whizzer White returning $5,000 of his $15,000 salary is a lot of bunk, says Art Rooney. Joe Jacobs was among the welcome party to greet Max Schmeling, his heavyweight fighter. Joe flew from Detroit by plane. Natie Brown insists he's not doing any diving act for Tony Galento. Here's how Alice Marble, tennis playing songbird, doped out the court situation between encores at the Waldorf where she's soloing. Vines has such a flawless and orthodox style that it raises his opponent's play 25 per cent. Budge's technique is just unorthodox enough to cut 25 per cent off his opponent's efficiency. Which may account for the standing of the pair in the pro matches.

Yesterday Mike Jacobs returned from having three teeth yanked to find K. O. Morgan pickets surrounding the Hipp. Morgan and his pals are crying for a shot at Sixto Escobar in Mike's place. Bill Terry was due in New York today. The offers are $2,000 and $2,500 for major league pitchers winning 20 games. In the good old days, the best Pete Alexander could do was $1,000 for copping 30. Manager Paul Black might just as well have been hit over the head with a hockey stick lately. He had just as many headaches. Three cancellations in a row because of poor ice. The boss of the Kingston puck pushers has lost hope. Sunday he has his club booked with the Cornwall team at Strubel's Garden. Starting time is 3:30 o'clock. Can't you bribe old Jack Frost, Blackie? Why not coax him a bit? This is one Friday without fights at the auditorium. The next Golden Gloves show will be Tuesday, February 7th. Ladies vs. gentlemen. That's the attraction at the Central Recreation Bowling Alleys, Sunday afternoon. The barbers from the Frank & Charles Shop will clash with the Shaprio Jewels, one of the best feminine bowling teams in Newburgh.

High Falls Firemen Defeat The Forst Packers by 28 to 19

Didn't Cash In

15 years ago Little Bill Johnston was battling Thiden on the tennis courts.

Today Johnston works in San Francisco. He doesn't regret his failure to turn pro.

The High Falls Firemen continued their winning streak last night defeating the Forst Packers 28-19. The Fire Boys led all the way but the Packers gave them plenty of opposition.

The visitors failed to make good on fouls, converting only eight out of 19 tries, while the Firemen made 12 out of 15.

Woods was high scorer for the Forsts with seven points. Celuch and Rask made seven each for the Firemen. Brooks played a fine floor game and provided the spark for High Falls.

In the preliminary the Falls Juniors took a close one from the Gens 17-16.

Bettina Local Amateur Product, May Realize Ambition Tonight; Next Golden Gloves on February 7

Tiger Jack Fox Is Favored Over Melio Bettina 5 to 12

New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—Mello Bettina and Tiger Jack Fox, two fighters from the wrong side of the tracks, will maul each other in Madison Square Garden tonight for New York's world light heavyweight championship, a somewhat tarnished jewel in fistiana's crown.

These hitherto unassuming performers will fight for a title good only in this state. John Henry Lewis is regarded as the best light heavy in the world and legitimate boss of the division outside of New York. The state athletic commission relieved him of the title because he wouldn't defend it against Fox, whom he once stored in three rounds.

Mike Jacobs, scouting gold in the division's tangled affairs, has large plans for a bout between John Henry Lewis and Dave Clark of Detroit, with the victor meeting the winner of tonight's combat.

Right now it looks as if John Henry would have to chop off a leg to get down to 175, the division limit.

Fox's reputation as a biter and Bettina's as a homespun hero who is kind to small children will swell tonight's gate to around $35,000. Mello is from Beacon, N. Y., and 1,500 of his fellow townsmen and their kin will be down chanting "Bring the Bacon Back to Beacon." Fox, from Spokane, Wash., will be shy on home-folks.

So well do New Yorkers think of Bre' Fox that the venerable socker has been installed a 5 to 12 favorite, but the arrival of the Beacons late today will hammer the odds down before the 15-round duel starts.

No Boxing Gem
The bout will fail to send lovers of boxing from into swoons of delight. Fox just walks around with his hands at his knees and starts swinging when the opportunity presents itself. Surprisingly he is fairly hard to hit solidly.

Bettina is a southerner, a cringing fighter, he is a strong, steady workman who can take a lot of punishment and keep up right. His manager, Jimmy Grippo, a magician of note, claims his charge has improved wonderfully in the past.

Grippo admits he often hypnotizes Bettina and sends him into what the boys call a "transom." The Tiger is a hypnotist from the word go, but he uses his hands, not his eyes.

Father Almost Forced Champ Patty Berg Right Out of Golf

By GAYLE TALBOT

Miami, Fla., Feb. 3 (AP)—I was wandering along out at the Miami Biltmore course, watching Patty Berg mow another opponent down, when I ran into Patty's father, Herman, who also was observing his daughter's play in an abstract way.

He is a little fellow, but his grip nearly took my fingers out by the roots. He shakes hands like his young daughter plays golf—for keeps. He is in the grain business up in Minneapolis and he is a fan of the game. He is a fan of the game. He is a fan of the game.

Patty had played three holes when I caught up, but Herman didn't know how she stood with her rival. He said he thought maybe she was all even. As we trudged along behind the gallery following Patty he didn't pay much attention to how she was hitting the ball. He recalled that I had been covering golf in England three summers ago when Patty, then 18, went over to play on the United States Curtis Cup team.

"It's a funny thing how these kids play such a fine game," he reflected as Patty popped a ball and nicked up to the pin. "I get out and knock the ball around now and then, but I'm strictly no good."

That's how close this country came to losing its favorite girl golfer. There's nothing glamorous about Patty-of-the-rolling-gait to her father, Herman. She's just a daughter who by some miracle happens to play golf supremely well. Herman didn't even see her win the national championship last summer.

Local amateur boxers who seek a career in sport generally known as the manly art need look no further than Melio Bettina, the Beacon boy who started his fistic career here a few years back and tonight is battling for the world's light-heavyweight title.

As Bettina cuts loose with Tiger Jack Fox in Madison Square Garden tonight for the 175-pound crown, he'll be realizing an ambition that came to him not so long ago when he was an amateur battler competing right here in Kingston.

The Beacon Bomber, one of the rawest-looking ringmen that ever exhibited his fistic wares before local fans of fistic bad faith in himself and gradually battled his way right up to the door of the throne room.

All he needs is a win tonight and that ambition to be a champion will have been realized, although his hard plugging and the astute handling of Jimmy Grippo his manager.

Announcer Sam Riber can recall when he introduced Bettina as "Tarzan" the squat southpaw, with nothing but a pretty good punch and the ability to take a lot of punishment. Melio was rank then to most of the ring-sliders, who suggested that he stick to digging ditches for a living.

But, Grippo, saw a great fighter in Bettina, and so far Jimmy's judgment has been right. If he can only win that title tonight, the friendly Beacon magician will be the happiest man in the world—happier even than Bettina.

That same chance awaits other amateur boxers, if they have the sense to listen to handlers who know their business. Boys with far more ability than Bettina have come out of the Adirondack A. A. U. crop of ringsters and are out their way up the ladder of fistic fame.

Mario Severino, Vice Sempervino, Matt Perfecto, Vice Sempervino, and Carmine Fatta, the Newburgh lightweight sensation who has just joined the pros.

Kingston is now turning out a new crop of fighters, green kids, who like Melio Bettina, are turning to the Golden Gloves as the test to find out whether or not they should continue.

The next Golden Gloves show in Kingston will be held at the auditorium on Tuesday night, February 7, at which time the following card will be presented:

Schmeling Says He'll Beat Louis

New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—"Yah, I can beat Choe Louis; I know I can," said Max Schmeling.

He is back in the big town with the war drums throbbing in his brain and his ears attuned to the crackle of crisp American bills. He wants to close his records with a victory.

"I do not come seeking fights," he said. "Perhaps I can get some. I think I can beat these heavyweights. You do not laugh when I say I can beat Louis. But I think you do inside."

"These rumors about my being in a concentration camp are silly, ridiculous. I am not what you say in bad with the government."

Elks Clinch City Loop Lead, Defeating JYA 50-26 as Sapp Posts New Scoring Record

Last night at the municipal auditorium, the Elks won 50-26 over the JYA and the Uptown Merchants, who were tied with the Big Horns for the American Division lead, bowed to the Kalamazoo, 34-29, thus the Elks are now in possession of first place.

In the other game last night Hercules defeated the Baltz quintet, 46-28, as Hank Krum scored 17 points and Charley Bock 12. For the Baltz five, Bruce was high with 13 points.

Lou Sapp ran wild for the Elks to set an all-time scoring record in the league of 26 points. He dug up the ball and sank one shot after the other to run up a tally equal to that of the whole JYA team.

The Merchants dropped out of their chance to hold on to first place as the Kalamazoo romped around the court, no one of the stovers scoring more than four points. Van Buren was high with 10. Schneider made 12 for the Merchants, eight of them fouls.

Rule Changes and Player Trades in The City League

Managers of the National Division of the City Basketball League met last night at the auditorium to make final arrangements for beginning the second half of league play on Tuesday.

Two changes in rules were passed on last night, bringing league regulations into stricter conformity with the amateur interpretations. Players were limited to four personal fouls, and five time-outs for a game. All games must start 15 minutes past scheduled time at the latest or be forfeited.

Several changes in team line-ups were announced. Goggy Boyce was transferred from Baltz's to Kinney's; Cowboy Evory was added to the Baltz list; Leonard Ratfegators secured Tony Debrosky and released Chapie Cooper to Kinney's.

North Bergen, N. J.—Bronko Nagurski, 230, International Falls, Minn., defeated Hans Steinke, 242, Germany, 30:10.

HOW TUNA ARE CAUGHT OFF SICILY

WHEN TUNA ARE MIGRATING from the Adriatic sea to the Atlantic ocean, the fishermen off Trapani, Sicily, hurriedly lay down huge nets and wait until the tuna come along. They then close the nets at both ends, trapping the giant fish in a 150-foot square "cell" which means certain death to any tumbling fisherman. He's crushed by the tails. Above, men lift out tuna.

DEATH LURKS FOR 'UNCLE JOE' as his boat moves through churning waters of cell in which tuna are trapped off Trapani, Sicily. He calls orders to fishermen outside net.

Early American 'Ordinary'

Forerunner of the Hotel
The early American public house or "ordinary" as it was commonly called, was the crude forerunner of the modern hotel in this country. With the development of roads these "ordinaries" increased. Gradually the old name was dropped, and the public houses, with their taprooms and great fireplaces, became known as taverns. About the time of the Revolution the word hotel was found in general use, relates a writer in the Chicago Tribune.
In 1794 the City Hotel, a New York house with 73 rooms, was opened. It was considered a tremendous establishment in its time. Soon other hotels were built in Philadelphia, Boston, and Baltimore. The new establishments were confined, however, to the principal eastern cities until the development of the railroad.
The first steam trains carried many commercial travelers westward into new business territories. Quickly their numbers increased and as quickly ho. 's sprang up in the towns and cities which became their stopping places.

25 Policemen at Annual School

There was an attendance of about 25 members of the Kingston police department at the opening session of the annual police school at the city hall on Thursday afternoon. Weekly sessions will be held every Thursday afternoon for a period of two weeks. The instructors are Lieutenant Charles Phinney and Lieutenant James V. Simpson.
The subject discussed at the opening session on Thursday by Lieutenant Simpson was the enforcement of present laws. Two reels of sound pictures were also shown. They were "Life Savers of the Highway" and "Law Enforcement" which proved highly interesting.
These two reels were shown at the noon meeting that day of the Kiwanis Club.
Next Thursday afternoon Lieutenant Phinney will discuss "Crime Prevention" at the school session.

Buys Tennessee Paper

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 3 (AP)—The Nashville Times, afternoon newspaper, announced yesterday James H. Sachs of Bedford, N. Y., had acquired "sole ownership" of the paper. Sachs said transfer of all capital stock in the newspaper was approved by Federal Judge John J. Gore under provisions of the Chandler Act, a federal reorganization statute. The Times said Sachs, a native of New York city, had been affiliated with the banking business and added that he was one of the founders of Newsweek.

Roosevelt Shouts
'Lie' to Statement

paper owner variety in connection with the defense and foreign policy programs were pure bull. These agitators, he said, were appealing to the prejudices and fears of the people and were acting in an un-American way.
The President's lengthy discussion of foreign policy followed a question which suggested that some people were confused about what actually took place at his conference with the Senate military committee and also his meeting yesterday with a House appropriations subcommittee on the army bill.
Mr. Roosevelt said his foreign policy had been completely covered in his messages to Congress.
He added the people were confronted by the simple fact that many people, some members of the House and Senate and some newspaper owners, were deliberately putting before the public a deliberate misrepresentation of facts.

McReynolds 77 Today

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP)—Justice James C. McReynolds, who has been the most frequent opponent of Roosevelt administration legislation on the Supreme Court, became 77 years old today. His retirement long has been rumored, but he has given no indication that he expects to quit in the immediate future.
